Carpenters' Strike Idles 5000, Halts Construction

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Five thousand AFL carpenters failed to show up for work on scores of Washington area construction projects yesterday in a strike for 10 cents an hour higher pay.

Effects of the strike were immediately felt on many of the construction jobs, including the 25-million-dollar General Accounting Office building at 5th and G sts. nw. One contractor broke ranks and settled with the union during the day.

Some 15,000 other AFL mechanics and building laborers reported to work as usual yesterday, but by nightfall hundreds had been laid off until the end of the strike.

Carpenters' Loss Felt

Industry sources claimed that unless the walkout is settled soon, most of the 15,000 other workmen will also be furloughed pending a strike settlement. The construction jobs, they agreed, can't proceed far or long without the key workmen of the carpenters' union.

The carpenters not only operate the hammers and saws, but the piledrivers as well. Thus, at the GAO site, four mighty pile drivers stood idle, although the operating engineers were on hand to fire the boilers. At other building sites, the gangs of workmen were unable to proceed for the lack of supervisors, many of whom are also members of the seven carpenters' locals.

Randall Wyant, executive secretary of the Master Builders Association, predicted yesterday that by the end of the week, the greater part of the one hundred million dollars in construction here would be tied up by the carpenters' walkout.

Master Builders Scoff

However, B. B. Blackburn, secretary-treasurer of the Carpenters District Council, insisted yesterday that many contractors were signing up new agreements with the union, granting the requested 10-cents-an-hour increase to $2.50 an hour. He said that 70 employers, including one hiring 198 carpenters, had signed new contracts.

The Master Builders scoffed at the union claims, and in turn asserted that at least 95 per cent of the contractors were standing firm

U. S. Population Reaches New High At 148,527,000

The population of this country reached a new record high of 148,527,000 on April 1, the Census Bureau estimated yesterday.

That reflected a growth of 580,000 during the first three months of 1949. The same growth was recorded in the first three months of last year.

The estimate included almost one million persons in the armed forces overseas along with 147,034,000 civilians.

Little Rock, Ark., June 1 (AP).—A birth certificate, received by the Arkansas Vital Statistics Bureau, listed the mother's occupation as "cotton and babies" and the father's as "jest settin'." The bureau did not disclose the names of the parents.

Maryland Falls in Line On Right Turn Sign

Maryland motorists are now in line with the rest of the country in the matter of signals for a right turn.

A law which became effective yesterday makes the signal the left hand pointed upward, the arm being bent in a right angle at the elbow. The old signal—now abandoned everywhere but in Connecticut—was to extend the left arm and make circular motions with the hand.

Police Pick Up 12 In Rape, Theft in Park

A 24-year-old woman was raped in Rock Creek Park last night while her male companion lay helpless nearby, his hands bound with adhesive tape, police reported.

Sex squad detectives rounded up more than 12 suspects and were questioning them early today.

The couple was approached by a Negro, police said, about 10:20 p. m. as they sat on the grass near Francis Junior High School, 23d and O sts. nw.

After robbing them of $25 at gun point, the intruder ordered the man to lie on his stomach on the grass and taped his hands behind him, they said.

After this the woman was reportedly raped.

8000 Join Bolivia Strike

(From Press Dispatches)

La Paz, Bolivia, June 1.—An estimated 8000 organized factory workers walked off their jobs today in sympathy with Bolivia's striking tin miners.

Strikes also have paralyzed railroads in most parts of the country but Acting President Mamerto Urriolagoitia said the government was in complete control and no further disorders have been reported.

Union leaders said the factory walkout was called in protest against the government's handling of the mine strikes, in which a number of persons have been killed, including two American engineers.

Textile mills, breweries, glass and furniture factories were affected by today's walkout.

Urriolagoitia said there would be no government discrimination against labor. He said emphatically that no matter what happened in the tin mine rioting there would be no censorship.

The government terms the strikes part of an opposition plot to seize power. The strikers demand that the government bring home union leaders exiled to Chile last weekend as revolutionary leaders.

Rita Sees Horse Win

Paris, June 1 (U.P.).—Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan paid a honeymoon visit to the racetrack today and were rewarded by seeing Rita's 2-year-old horse, Skylarking, a wedding present from Aly, come from behind to win the Prix de Nogeant Stakes.

Wilson High Company Wins Cadet Drill

A Woodrow Wilson High School company, for the first time in the school's history, yesterday won first place in the annual Cadet Corps drill at Griffith Stadium.

Cheers from the stands greeted the victory of Woodrow Wilson's Company B, which broke Western High's 8-year grip on the top honor. Previously Woodrow Wilson took a second prize in 1937, and came in third in 1939 and 1945.

About 1000 persons watched the conclusion of the two-day white high school competition, with Wilson's Company C placing second, and Western's Company H coming in third.

First prize for the best band went to Anacostia's musicians, who also won the award in 1945 and 1947. Roosevelt's band placed second, and Western's came in third.

McKinley's First Sergt. Clifford Leroy won first place in the distinguished noncommissioned officer's competition, based on a manual of arms drill with one noncommissioned officer from each of 10 schools competing. Sergt. Eugene Whitmire, of Central, won second place, and Sergt. Richard Jewett, of Wilson, came in third.

Col. Patrick H. Clarke, jr., of Central, and chief of the Cadet Brigade, received a saber from the Washington chapter of the First Division Society, presented by Col. D. R. Curtis, its local president.

Capt. Irving M. Goldman, Wilson's winning company commander, received the traditional Allison Nailor Medal from C. Melvin Sharpe, president of the Board of Education. Goldman, of 5536 32d st. nw., also received the Col. Wallace M. Craigie saber from Mrs. Craigie, widow of the late teacher of military science and tactics for local schools.

Capt. Crandal Wilson Solback of Wilson's Company C received a second-place gold medal from the American Legion, and Capt. John L. Lund of Western's Company H got a silver third-place medal from the Legion.

Lieut. Col. William E. Barkman, head of the Cadet program in white schools, announced the awards.

Four cadets, who fainted in the 80-degree heat, were carried from the field and treated for heat prostration at the first-aid tent, in charge of Donald Brown, physical education instructor at Roosevelt High School. About 10 other persons sought shelter from the heat.

Eugene Paro, captain of Western's winning 1948 Company K, and a spectator at yesterday's drill, admitted disappointment at West-

Prince Georges Votes Today On Legalizing Slot Machines

By John London
Post Reporter

Voters in Prince Georges County will decide today whether to legalize cash payoffs for slot machines and pinball games.

In some quarters it was predicted only about 20 per cent of 45,000 qualified voters will go to the polls which will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

It was agreed that the smaller the vote in the referendum, authorized by the last session of the Maryland General Assembly, the more likely approval of gambling devices.

Samuel Wyvill, of the Board of Election Supervisors, predicted the "slot machine will carry by about two to one."

Government workers may take time off to vote if they get approval of their personnel offices. The Civil Service Commission stated it is White House policy to give Government workers "reasonable" time off to vote in all elections, if they can be spared.

Voters will have to check one of two squares: "For licensing certain amusement devices" or

House Action On Home Rule Called Unlikely

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

A majority of the 25-member House District Committee is prepared to support Washington home rule legislation.

Yet few members of the group expect House action this session on the Senate-approved home rule bill.

First real clews to how this paradox will be worked out may come at Monday's executive meeting of the District Committee.

Fifteen members of the committee yesterday indicated they would vote to present a home rule bill to the House for action. Their probable support for home rule does not mean uniform indorsement of the Senate measure. Most said they had not yet studied the Senate bill.

But while the majority of the full committee appeared ready to support the general purposes of the Senate bill, the probable line-up in the subcommittee that will receive and handle the Senate measure is less favorable to the home rule plan.

This key subcommittee is the House District Judiciary Subcommittee. Its members are Representatives Harris (D., Ark.), chairman; Abernethy (D., Miss.), Teague (D., Texas), Jones (D., Ala.), O'Hara (R., Minn.), Auchincloss (R., N. J.) and Allen (R., Calif.).

Of the seven, only two, Representatives Auchincloss and Allen, have actively supported the home rule legislation. Auchincloss and Allen played leading roles in last

Benedicts Given Pointers on How To Lift Brides

New York, June 1 (U.P.).—The greater New York Safety Council instructed bridegrooms today on the proper technique of hoisting a June bride over the threshold.

"Bend the knees, keep the body upright, take a firm grip on the object to be lifted, push upward with the leg muscles," the council advised gravely. "The strain should be on the lifter's legs, not his back. Do not try to lift too much weight."

It added that the bride should be gripped "in such a way that your vision of the path ahead is not obstructed. . . . Sentiment should not blind the bridegroom to the correct methods of lifting."

"The bridegroom will find the same technique handy later when he has to lift furniture or barrels in the arrangement and maintenance of the new home," the council said.

Anacostia River Improvement Cost Put At $4,531,000

A $4,531,000 Anacostia River channel improvement project, including a commercial harbor at Bladensburg, Md., was recommended to Congress yesterday.

The plan was submitted by the Army Engineers. It was referred to the House Public Works Committee.

The river project would include a navigation channel between 15th st. se., and Bladensburg with a recreation basin and commercial harbor at Bladensburg.

Other local flood control works would be constructed at Edmonston, Riverdale, Hyattsville, Brentwood, Cottage City and Colmar Manor, all in nearby Maryland.

House Passes $72 Veteran Pension Bill

A $72-a-month pension for veterans of World Wars I and II passed the House yesterday, 365 to 27.

It now goes to the Senate, where its backers fear, it may encounter trouble because of the expense. The Budget Bureau has estimated it would cost 65 billion dollars over the next 50 years.

The bill, substitute for a more costly proposal defeated by the House in March, would put into permanent law existing Veterans Administration regulations under which some veterans now receive pensions.

Liberalized Regulations

But it would liberalize these regulations, mainly by:

1. Assuming that any veteran is totally and permanently disabled at age 65 and;

2. Removing an existing "unemployability" standard saying that a 65-year-old veteran who can work half a normal day or earn half a normal day's pay shall not receive a pension.

Veterans Administration regulations now require a showing of at least 10 per cent disability, after a medical test, for a 65-year-old veteran to receive the $72 monthly payment.

The new bill provides for no medical examination at age 65, nor does it deny a pension to a veteran because he still is able to do full-time work.

The bill also boosts to $1200 the annual income limitation for a single veteran. Existing regulations deny pensions to a single veteran whose income exceeds $1000. There is no change in the $2500 income limitation for a veteran with dependents. Also hiked to $1200 is the income limitation for widows without children, whose present pension status would not otherwise be changed by the proposed new law.

Debate Less Than 2 Hours

The House debated the bill less than two hours before sending it to the Senate.

Most of that time was taken by discussion of the unemployability provision, which the Veterans' Affairs Committee said should be written into the bill over the objection of Chairman Rankin (D., Miss.).

The House rebuffed the committee by knocking out the provisions on a standing vote, 172 to 57.

Rankin and others who opposed it called it unfair and discriminatory. They said no other Government pension system, including that voted several years ago for Congress itself, has such a restriction.

New Group Plans Awards To Help U. S. Way of Life

New York, June 1 (AP).—The New York Times says a new organization, Freedom Foundations, Inc., has been formed to bestow annual awards for outstanding contributions to understanding the American way of life.

The Times says the group plans to make awards which "will considerably exceed that of the Nobel prizes, which total about $40,500 annually."

The American Association of Advertising Agencies and the Association of National Advertisers are directing the project, according to the Times.

Buying Forces Check Declines In U. S. Markets

New York, June 1 (AP).—Buying forces returned to the stock, grain and cotton markets today after Tuesday's sharp price declines.

Stocks in the New York Exchange got off to a bad start, but dug in for a stand almost immediately and ended the day pointed upward.

Losses, though, still outweighed gains at the closing bell.

Corn led an advance in the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat, oats and rye tagged along.

Demand for cotton gained momentum as trading progressed.

'Mismanagement' Case Opens

Personnel Turnover of AEC Hits 87%, Hickenlooper Says

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

In the two years of its operation, the Atomic Energy Commission has had a personnel turnover of 87 per cent, Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) charged yesterday in opening his "mismanagement" case against AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal.

Across the witness table, Lilienthal faced his accuser in the jam-packed, klieg-lighted historic Senate caucus room, scene of many of the most important hearings in Congressional history.

Hickenlooper's figures on personnel turnover, which included top-ranking executives, were taken from the periodical reports of the commission to the joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, whose hearings on Lilienthal's stewardship may take months.

Lilienthal cited the great difficulties of keeping able persons in Government service, and promised a detailed reply when he had an opportunity to examine Hickenlooper's break-down of the commission figures.

There were these other major developments:

1. Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) asked for a report on information he had received that on one or two occasions the "master key file" at the Argonne laboratory at the University of Chicago, whence some U-235 mysteriously vanished, had been left open and guards were ordered not to report the security violation.

2. AEC General Manager Carroll Wilson testified, under questioning from Representative Charles H. Elston (R., Ohio), that on two occasions he had overruled recommendations of the AEC security officer, Rear Admiral John Gingrich, and kept on the payroll two scientists whom Gingrich considered bad security risks.

The names of the two were not revealed, but Wilson said he did not mean Dr. Edward Condon, Bureau of Standards chief, and Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.), both of whom were cleared by the commission itself over the adverse ruling of the special security board.

3. Knowland also asked for report that special green stickers were given some persons at the Argonne laboratory so their cars would not be subject to search by guards.

4. The committee, in executive session late yesterday, voted to ask the Atomic Energy Commission to produce six of a list of 12 sets of documents requested by Hickenlooper. It held in abeyance the request for the remaining six.

Spectators thronged the big marble-columned caucus room in the Senate Office Building as the hearing began, with Hickenlooper and

U. S. Security Bars Coplon Purse Papers

By the United Press

Twelve FBI reports allegedly found in Judith Coplon's purse were barred as evidence in her spy trial yesterday on grounds publication would endanger the national security.

Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves sustained the Government's objection to use of the papers over the vigorous protests of defense attorney Archibald Palmer.

Palmer did succeed in having the documents identified for the jury. They included reports of FBI agents in New York, Los Angeles and other cities on persons named but not further identified.

One report involved a San Francisco Russian-language newspaper, Novaya Zarya, and one referred to a "Gen. Nicholae Radescu and Austria . . . French military authorities."

Other Reports Admitted

Miss Coplon, former Justice Department employe, is accused of stealing confidential FBI information for transmission to Russia through Valentin A. Gubitchev, suspended Soviet employe of the United Nations. She was arrested with Gubitchev in New York March 4.

The Government Tuesday introduced in evidence several FBI reports which it said were found in the dark-haired former Government girl's purse when she was apprehended.

They included background statements on alleged prospective recruits for Russian spying, a report of Miss Coplon's alleged efforts to get another top-secret document, and an FBI report naming Ruth Gruber, former aide to one time Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, as a Russian contact.

Palmer, who objected to introduction of the previous documents, asked FBI Agent T. Scott Miller yesterday whether there were others in Miss Coplon's purse.

Prosecutor Objects

Miller, who testified he examined the petite brunette's purse shortly after her arrest, hesitated for a moment, then said "Yes." Palmer repeatedly tried to learn their contents until Special Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., objected.

"On the basis of the security of the United States I make my objection," Kelley shouted. Palmer protested "there is no such thing as security when you go into the courtroom," but Judge Reeves sustained the objection.

Later, however, Reeves permit-

West Refuses Soviet Veto In Berlin Rule

By Walter Kerr

Paris, June 1 (NYHT).—The Council of Foreign Ministers, having failed to make any progress toward the unification of Germany, turned to the question of a divided Berlin today and found it could not agree on the means of controlling a united city.

As in a revived Allied Control Council for the entire country, the Soviet delegation insisted upon the right of veto in a Kommandatura for the former capital, and this the United States, Britain and France would not accept.

Western observers say that if the Russian position is maintained the divided city will remain divided, leaving increased East-West trade as the only field on which this conference may reach an understanding.

Vishinsky Motives Questioned

They also think this is really all that is desired by Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet foreign minister, and that it was to obtain it that his government raised its land blockade of Berlin on May 12.

He may get what he wants if he is prepared in return to give the Western Powers free access to the city from their western zones.

On all other matters, it appears that the Soviet delegation puts four-power control operating with the right of veto as a condition for agreement, and United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson was unable to find today any willingness to compromise on the issue.

One municipal government where now there are two is the professed goal of all four states and every foreign minister says he favors free elections to such a body.

Limited Veto Only

In a Kommandatura to replace the one the Russians walked out of more than a year ago, however, the West will permit the veto only in a limited field.

Acheson said certain areas of administration should be left to the Germans, others settled in a Kommandatura by majority vote and still others in a Kommandatura by the rule of unanimity. But Vishinsky wanted unanimity all the way, which led the Secretary of State to say that apparently Vishinsky wanted a Berlin at his own terms or not at all.

First, he explained why he opposed the veto system:

"Because it is the most arbitrary and dictatorial method of preventing any action on a common basis. It can obstruct all action for the sole purpose of coercing others to

Bulk of Forrestal Estate Left In Trust for Wife and 2 Sons

New York, June 1 (AP).—Former Secretary of Defense James V. Forrestal left the bulk of his residuary estate in trust for his wife and two sons, filing of his will in Surrogate's Court today revealed.

Forrestal plunged to his death from the sixteenth floor of the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., May 22.

Although the estate was valued for probate at "more than $25,000 in personal property and more than $5000 in real property," the will disposed of more than $560,000. It is dated January 14, 1932.

Forrestal asked that a $500,000 trust fund be set up with life income to be paid his wife, Mrs. Josephine Ogden Forrestal of 3508 Prospect ave. nw., Washington, D. C. Upon her death, the testament directed, income is to be paid their children, Michael V. and Peter Forrestal, with the principal eventually going to the children.

Other bequests included: $25,000 each to two brothers, H. L. A. and William A. Forrestal, both of Beacon, N. Y.; $10,000 to Paul M. Striefflер, New York, not otherwise identified; and $5000 to Miss Mary McGirr, his secretary.

The will directed that the residuary estate be added to the trust created for his widow. Clarence Dillon of Far Hills, N. J., and the New York Trust Co. were named as executors.

Chambers Confronts Perjury Defendant Again After Stryker Produces Surprise

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 1.—Whittaker Chambers—damned by defense counsel as a "liar" and a "moral leper"—today calmly began a courtroom recital of his charges that Alger Hiss, former State Department official, furnished him with documents for a Communist spy ring.

The stocky Chambers, a former senior editor of Time Magazine, came into Federal Court here as chief prosecution witness in the perjury trial of Hiss, in a dramatic denouement to the accusations made by Chambers last year before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Across the courtroom, with his wife by his side, the tall, lean, 44-year-old Hiss, whose highly successful civilian and Government career was sensationally challenged by Chambers last August 3, stared fixedly at his accuser in the witness box who frequently turned his eyes toward Hiss.

Defense Finds Typewriter

Chambers has declared he abandoned a role as a courier for the spy ring, and unsuccessfully begged Hiss to join him in "renouncing" communism. Hiss has flatly denied any communistic association, and has said he knew Chambers only casually under another name.

In the day's most surprising development, Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, chief prosecutor, declared that "25 or 30" FBI agents "shook down the City of Washington to a fare-thee-well" in an unsuccessful search for a missing typewriter he alleged was used in the Hiss home in Georgetown to copy secret documents.

The typewriter, Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker announced dramatically a few minutes later, has been found by the defense.

Stryker said Defense Attorney Edward C. McLean "bent heaven and earth" in search of it, and about six weeks ago, found it in possession of a truck driver.

Ready To Let FBI See It

Maintaining that Hiss has done everything possible in reaching the "truth" in the case, Stryker said, "we will consent" under "reasonable conditions" prescribed by the court, "to let these FBI's who could not find it, come down and look at it all they want . . . is that the conduct of a guilty man?"

Murphy stressed in his opening statement that he regarded the typewriter as highly important in the case. He said the documents he referred to were "undoubtedly typed on a Woodstock" typewriter with pica type, 10 letters to the inch.

Stryker told reporters in response to questions later that the typewriter which was recovered is in "bad" condition. There was no indication whether it is still in condition for comparison with the typed documents.

By being able to produce the typewriter—if it is the one used for the documents—the defense presumably takes out of the case an inference that the typewriter is being deliberately withheld.

Before Stryker's announcement, Murphy had told the jury of 10 men and two women that in 1937 and part of 1938, Hiss had handed over secret State Department documents to Chambers in "wholesale fashion." The prosecution he said, has "65 typewritten sheets," which he said were either "copies or paraphrases of original State Department documents."

At least 64 of these documents—all of which he said were dated in

Senate Unit Denied Look in Secret Files

By Marsnall Andrews
Post Reporter

Two Government officials yesterday declined to give a Senate subcommittee 164 secret files, but promised to provide information that would not be contrary to "public interest."

Attorney General Tom Clark and Assistant Secretary of State John E. Peurifoy had been subpenaed to produce the files before the Immigration Subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee. The subcommittee is studying legislation to tighten immigration laws against possible espionage agents.

Clark said President Truman had agreed the files should not be produced after studying the subcommittee's request. Chairman McCarran (D., Nev.) said he would not insist the files be produced despite the subpena, because he had no wish to reveal confidential sources or violate secrecy. But he added:

"I am determined that the extent of the problem be clearly revealed to the people. It can be done only when Government agencies make a revelation of basic facts.

"We want to know the basic facts which the files show. You can do it without physically producing a single file or revealing any sources of information."

He then gave Clark a list of 11 questions and demanded answers by next Monday. Clark and Peurifoy both agreed to cooperate "within the limits of national security."

McCarran's 11 questions dealt with numbers of Communists or their agents who have entered the United States as affiliates of international organizations or foreign governments, patterns of espionage, known spy rings and the like.

Clark said the 164 files concerned chiefly employes of the United Nations and of foreign governments. Among those he said they involved were ambassadors, a vice premier of a foreign country, and several cabinet members.

A House Judiciary Subcommittee meanwhile approved a bill that would permit deportable aliens such as Gerhart Eisler to be held without bail. Subcommittee Chairman Walter (D., Pa.) said the bill would be taken up today by the full committee.

Deportation Urged for Mrs. Eisler

New York, June 1 (U.P.).—Immigration officials today recommended that Mrs. Gerhart Eisler be deported to Poland.

Mrs. Eisler, who was arrested by the FBI shortly after her husband jumped bail and stowed away on a Polish liner, will be detained at Ellis Island until the recommendation is reviewed by the Commissioner of Immigration in Washington.

Abner Green, executive secretary of the Committe for the Protection of the Foreign Born, which defended Mrs. Eisler at the hearing, said she had no objection to being deported, but would rather leave voluntarily.

He criticized immigration authorities for not allowing her to leave immediately and said he would file habeas corpus action in Federal Court.

Eisler Is Reported Arriving in Dresden

Berlin (Thursday), June 2 (AP).—The Soviet-licensed news agency ADN said Gerhart Eisler arrived in Soviet occupation zone of Germany yesterday from Prague.

ADN said Eisler arrived in Dresden en route to the University of Leipzig, where he is slated to become a professor of social science.

In Prague Eisler told newsmen he had never been a leader or a member of the American Communist Party.

Czech Church Rule Asserted

Prague, June 1 (AP). — The Czechoslovak government announced today it intends to control the appointment of new priests and Catholic Church personnel.

The order ran head-on into a new letter to the clergy from Archbishop Josef Beran, head of Czechoslovakia's nine million Catholics, again threatening automatic excommunication for "collaborators" with the Communist-dominated government.

The Ministry of Education decreed that no appointment of a priest, or other church administrative and personnel changes, would be valid unless printed in the government's "Official Gazette for Catholic Clergymen."

The archbishop has instructed his priests to ignore the Gazette.

Eisler Is Right, 'I'm the Dumbest,' Tom Clark Says

Attorney General Tom Clark said yesterday that for once in his life he agrees with Communist Gerhart Eisler.

"I am the dumbest man in the country," Clark said.

Eisler, who fled from the United States while under bond, said Tuesday in Czechoslovakia that Clark is the biggest fool in America.

Woman Named at Trial Denies Acquaintance

New York, June 1 (AP).—Ursula Wasserman, named yesterday in evidence at the Judith Coplon espionage trial, today said she has never known the Coplon girl.

Miss Wasserman's name was on a memo submitted by the FBI as evidence in the Washington trial. The memo allegedly was seized from Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested here.

The memo contained a report on Miss Wasserman and read:

"In March, 1946, subject had in her address book the name of Ruth Gruber. Gruber has been reported to have been a contact of F. . Gerinin of the Soviet Embassy, Washington."

Miss Wasserman said "I have been socially acquainted with Miss Gruber for a number of years, and have a high regard for her as a writer and a reputable and well-known correspondent for the New York Post and New York Herald Tribune.

"I do not know, and have never known, any of the other persons mentioned in connection with the trial nor heard of their names in the press."

"I have never known Miss Judith Coplon or Mr. Valentin A. Gubitchev," she said. Gubitchev is a suspended Russian U. N. employe to whom Miss Coplon is alleged to have intended to give government secrets.

Miss Gruber has said she does not know Miss Coplon, and added, "I have never been a contact person for anyone."

Hiss Defense Reveals It Has Typewriter FBI Couldn't Find

Mrs. Hiss Quoted

One of these documents, Murphy said, is still so secret that "we're going to ask the judge not to let you see it."

Murphy said Mrs. Hiss stated she got the typewriter, an office model Woodstock, from her father in Philadelphia and gave it or sold it to a second-hand dealer in 1948.

The typewritten documents, together with four handwritten documents which Chambers says he received from Hiss, were depositions taken in Hiss' $75,000 libel suit filed against Chambers in Baltimore, Murphy said.

Originally, said Murphy, Hiss made available to Chambers certain documents which Chambers took to be microfilmed and to turn over to a Col. Boris Bykov, whom Chambers has described as a Russian spy. To speed up the process, Murphy said, it was then decided that Hiss would bring documents home and Mrs. Hiss would copy them off on the typewriter, to turn over to Chambers.

"We will corroborate Mr. Chambers' testimony by the typewriter and the handwriting," Murphy declared.

Case Hinges on Credibility

"Examine Mr. Chambers. Look at him attentively . . . if you don't believe Chambers then we don't have a case under the Federal perjury rules . . .

"You need one witness (to perjury), the judge will tell you, plus corroboration." "The Government," said Murphy, "welcomes a searching cross-examination of Chambers to determine if the former Communist, former espionage agent is telling the truth . . ."

"I think you will be as convinced as I that he is telling the truth."

While this trial involves only perjury charges—Hiss' denials that he gave any secret documents to Chambers, or that he even saw him after January 1, 1937—the two days that the trial has been under way have been marked by clashes over the extent of admissible evidence.

Presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, at the close of today's session, took under advisement a request by Stryker to limit Chambers' testimony on his communistic activities on grounds that this bears on charges of espionage—barred by the statute of limitations and not at issue in the case.

Chambers Begins Life Story

Chambers, on the witness stand for only about 25 minutes at the end of the day, started on an account of his life's story beginning with his birth on April 1, 1901, in Philadelphia.

In a rumpled, dark blue suit, he leaned back and matter-of-factly described his early years, during which he taught himself German at home, then told how he entered Columbia University in 1920, leaving there in his junior year for a trip to Europe.

Before he left, he said, he had had some "difficulty" with Columbia professors over a story he wrote for a college publication—Stryker described it as "a filthy, despicable play about Jesus Christ."

Tells of Joining Party

Upon returning from Europe he began "a very close study of Fabian socialism," and later returned briefly to Columbia. He joined the Communist Party in January, 1924, said Chambers, and after voluntary work at newsstand collections for the paper, went to work for the Daily Worker, first on a trial basis and later on a paid basis.

Chambers' testimony is to be continued when the trial is resumed at 11:30 Thursday.

Asked by Murphy, "What was your religion?" Chambers replied, "I had had no religious upbringing."

He said he "presently took a kind of adolescent atheistic turn" in his view of religion, but on Stryker's objection, Judge Kaufman ordered this stricken out and noted rather sharply that Chambers was to testify to facts and not venture opinions or characterizations.

While Murphy took but 25 minutes for his opening statement, Stryker consumed almost a full hour in bitterly denouncing Chambers, challenging his motives, and pointing repeatdly to Hiss' record and positions of trust.

Prosecutor Murphy, 6 feet 4 inches tall, weighing 240 pounds, and wearing a bristling British-type mustache, was a sharp contrast in trial-room manner to the short, chunky Stryker.

Language Is Colorful

While Murphy spoke rather softly and simply, Stryker, a lawyer of the "old school," with close-cropped white hair and a complexion that grew florid as his voice rose to a crescendo, presented his statement in bold, colorful language.

He denounced Chambers as a "furtive, deceptive man . . . a confirmed liar . . . a blasphemer . . . a Communist conspirator and a thug . . . a moral leper."

Seizing Murphy's statement that the key issue involved the credibility of Chambers' statements, Stryker declared, "remember, if you don't believe Mr. Chambers, then, on Mr. Murphy's own statement, that is the end to this case, no matter what else they may try to establish."

Starting with Hiss' birth in Baltimore, on November 11, 1904, Stryker traced his schooling at Johns Hopkins University to Harvard Law School, where he was an outstanding student; his service as law secretary to the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Stryker Cites Services

At some length, Stryker discussed the greatness of Holmes and his trust in Hiss, and declared that he might go further into that subject later by summoning, "with all due reverence, the shade of that great member of the Supreme Court."

In Washington, with the Agricultural Adjustment Administration starting in 1933, later in serving with the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee; starting in 1936 as assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, and later as an aide to President Roosevelt at Yalta, at the United Nations, and in other posts, said Stryker:

"Alger Hiss . . . was weighed in all these crucibles and never found wanting in the slightest degree."

Pointing to Hiss' most recent post—president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, to which Hiss recently declined reelection—Stryker said there should be no doubt whatsoever about Hiss' continuing integrity.

In contrast, he said, Chambers began using an alias "even before he joined the Communist party" and decided to become a member of this "low-down, nefarious conspiracy." For "twelve long years," he said, Chambers was "a voluntary conspirator against the land that I love and you love."

Before Chambers was called to the witness stand, six witnesses, three of them from Washington, were summoned for technical testimony.

Adelaide Lowe, secretary of the grand jury which indicted Hiss, and Louis Benson and Benedict De Buff, shorthand reporters, testified to the accuracy of grand jury records.

Donald L. Jones, a manager for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.; Dwight E. Hahn, assistant to the commercial manager of the Potomac Electric Power Co., and Edward B. Longyear, an attorney for the Washington Gas Light Co., were the Washington witnesses.

They testified that their various services, between June 13, 1933, and December 22, 1947, were furnished to a listing of "Alger Hiss" at the following addresses during stated periods: 3411 O st. nw., 2831 28th st. nw., 2905 P st. nw., 1245 30th st. nw.; 3415 Volta pl., and 3210 P st. nw.

Spence Acts To End Delay On Housing

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House leaders yesterday moved to break a Rules Committee blockade of President Truman's long-range housing bill as the committee delayed a vote for the second straight week.

The new "anti-bottleneck" rule, designed to meet such contingencies, was set in motion by House Banking Chairman Spence (D., Ky.), with the full backing of the leadership.

Spence filed a simple resolution in the House formally requesting consideration of his measure under an open rule permitting six hours of debate.

Can Appeal To House

If the rules group fails to clear it in 21 days, Spence can take his case directly to the House on the next "discharge day" thereafter, Monday, June 27.

Indications were the committee may report the bill long before that but Spence said he filed his resolution "just in case."

The latest delay developed when Representative Herter (R., Mass.) suggested the Budget Bureau furnish, before the committee acts, cost figures and the extent to which the Government actually would be obligated by the program.

"Gentlemen Are Alarmed"

The committee adopted Herter's suggestion and Rules Chairman Sabath (D., Ill.) asked the Budget Bureau to supply the information before the committee takes another look at the bill Friday.

Sabath, a strong advocate of public housing, meanwhile advised Spence to take the first step toward invoking the new House "discharge" procedure.

If the bill is reported Friday, as some top Democrats expect, it will be considered in the House next week. A modified version of the measure already has passed the Senate, 57 to 13.

Describing what went on in the committee, Rules Chairman Sabath told newsmen:

"Some of the gentlemen are very much alarmed that we would be going in debt for a great amount of money — about 16 billion dollars over 40 years. I do not think it will cost anything like that."

Move Called Unnecessary

Spence told reporters the full cost of the program, 400 million a year, would of course, total 16 billion, but "judging by past experience only about two thirds of that, or 12 billion, would be spent over 40 years."

The Kentuckian said it wasn't necessary to ask the Budget Bureau if the bill "obligates" the Government to go through with the program.

"I concede that it does," said Spence. "It's all there in the bill."

By the United Press

A service wives' lobby swarmed down on Congress yesterday with demands that their husbands' pay be raised but Representative Sutton (D., Tenn.) said they did their breadwinners more harm than good.

Sutton, a World War II Navy veteran who helped scuttle a service pay bill last week because it gave too much to top brass and not enough to lower ranks, said the women men have killed chances for the compromise measure now being drafted.

He said some of them were "antagonistic and very indiscreet" and were overheard calling him a "young whippersnapper," a "country boy" and a "young hick."

About 100 women participated in the button-holing brigade. They cornered House members with stories of how badly they need more money. They wanted to know why last week's 406-million-dollar increase bill was sent back to the Armed Services Committee.

Mrs. Rodimon Commands

Mrs. Dorothea Harrison Rodimon, wife of a Navy captain, was in command. The woman said their husbands ranked from private to general. But she didn't want her lobbyists identified by the ranks of their husbands. She laid down the prinicple that "we're here on our own, not as representatives of our husbands."

Mrs. Rodimon, in her order of the day, proclaimed.

"Stick to personal experiences or those of your close friends, as most of us can talk convincingly on this familiar ground. Goodness knows that we have plenty of good examples of the inadequacies of our husbands' salaries."

Mrs. James Sands, formerly of San Diego and wife of a chief yeoman, said they had seen Sutton.

"He said he would have voted against the bill even if he knew it would defeat him," she reported.

Receive Two Groups

Sutton said he received two delegations. The first group, he said, was "exceptionally nice" and one of its three members left apologizing for misunderstanding his opposition to last week's bill.

He said the second group, numbering about 15, was "very antagonistic and very indiscreet." He said one woman identified as the wife of a high Navy officer used profanity. They were the ones, he said, overheard calling him a "whippersnapper" and "hick."

Sutton also was displeased with what he called "lobbying instructions" which he said some callers inadvertently left in his office.

The mimeographed instructions called for "barrages" of open letters to newspapers back home, under pen names such as "Army Wife" and "Friend of Air Force." It said home town newspapers, even obscure ones, "are our greatest offensive force."

Sutton said the lobbying tactics were too high pressure for his blood.

"I hope repercussions from today's activities don't kill the raise," he added. "However, I know from talking to some of the boys that they didn't like it. I've heard some members say they were for the raise, but that now they will vote against it."

Los Angeles Returns Bowron by Close Vote

Los Angeles, June 1 (U.P.)—Mayor Fletcher Bowron yesterday won the toughest election of his career by a margin of barely 30,000 votes, complete semiofficial returns showed today.

Returns from 3362 precincts in the runoff gave Bowron 238,190 votes for reelection to 207,211 for City Engineer Lloyd Aldrich.

Bowron called the campaign "the dirtiest in my experience." He and Aldrich have been political enemies for years. Bowron was first elected as a reform candidate in 1938.

President Thinks Peace Closer Now Than In 3 Years

President Truman said yesterday he thinks "we are closer to world peace now than at any time in the last three years."

The President gave that opinion in an informal talk to former war correspondents who covered the Normandy invasion. It came while he was discussing his hopes for eventual world peace.

The correspondents called at the White House to get started on an anniversary trip back to Europe to report what progress has been made in the five years since the June 6, 1944 landings.

The correspondents invited Mr. Truman to make the trip with them today.

He said he would like to "but I've got to stay here and work."

Hickenlooper Charges 87% AEC Personnel Turnover

Lilienthal seated directly opposite each other across the witness table.

Newsreel, television and still cameras were trained on the scene.

At the outset, Chairman McMahon (D., Conn.) announced sternly that there must be "no persecution and no whitewash" in investigating the charges against Lilienthal.

"The issue is one which goes to the heart of our national defense," McMahon said.

"The American people can feel confident that a fair opportunity will be furnished here—within the limits of security—to throw a searchlight on the facts.

"If the facts are such as to alarm our people, then they ought to be alarmed. If the facts are such as to reassure our people, let them be reassured."

Twice during the opening session, Lilienthal indicated that if any blame is to be fixed, it should fall upon the five-man commission as a whole.

This was brought out when Representative Holifield (D., Calif.) asked Lilienthal whether the commission acts as a unit or whether it is "compartmented."

"Lilienthal replied that each commissioner accepts "total responsibility" for the management of the program.

"If that is the case," Holifield asked, "Then the Senator's charge of incredible mismanagement will have to be borne by all of the commissioners?"

After some hesitation, Lilienthal replied: "Yes."

At another point, Representative Price (D., Ill.) questioned Hickenlooper:

"Are your charges directed against Lilienthal or the five-man commission?"

"My criticism goes to Lilienthal as chairman of the commission," Hickenlooper replied.

Lilienthal cut in to remark that the atomic energy law makes the commission the "governing body" and that "no power is delegated by law to the chairman."

General Manager Wilson's testimony that he kept two scientists on the atomic rolls after they had been challenged as bad risks created a stir in the crowded hearing room.

Wilson said he overruled Admiral Gingrich, who was then the AEC's top security boss, and had not taken the cases up with the commission itself. Gingrich resigned last April 30.

He said these were the only two cases—out of more than 100,000 persons investigated for atomic jobs—in which he countered Gingrich's recommendations.

Wilson said Gingrich thought the two scientists were "poor security risks," but he said Gingrich did not consider the cases serious enough to take them direct to the commission when Wilson overruled him.

"Were Gingrich's recommendations against them because they were considered subversive?" Representative Elston (R., Ohio) asked.

"They were," Wilson replied. "But I did not consider there was a security risk involved."

Employed by Contractors

The AEC official explained that the scientists were both employed in laboratories run by contractors and not primarily under the AEC's direction.

"Then you think you were better able to judge this question than the security officer?" Elston demanded.

"It was my responsibility; I made the decision," Wilson answered.

He said that as far as he could recall, only one of the two scientists is now working on an atomic project.

Senator Knowland questioned Lilienthal about security safeguards at the AEC's Argonne laboratories in Chicago. This is the atomic plant where a little vial of uranium-235 disappeared last February and the FBI was not notified until seven weeks later.

Knowland asked:

"Is it true that green stickers have been issued to Argonne officials which permit them to pass in and out of the project without guards being able to search their automobiles?

"And are the guards also ordered not to report any security infractions by these officials?"

Lilienthal replied that if the reports are true, the Senate-House committee will be told about it.

"I have also heard reports of instances in which the master key file was left open and guards were asked not to write up reports about it," Knowland said.

Under questioning by Chairman McMahon, Lilienthal said the commission has to supervise security in a total of 1270 installations.

McMahon asked if the commission guards Dr. Robert Oppenheimer, a top atomic scientist, in his secret work at Princeton University.

"We certainly do guard him," Lilienthal said. "In fact, Dr. Oppenheimer is a piece of classified information in himself."

Hickenlooper questioned Lilienthal at length about the many shifts of personnel in important AEC offices. The Senator said these shifts were "ample evidence" of lack of continuity, and he contended that it all summed up bad management.

But Lilienthal replied that the commission is constantly faced with "the great problem of the recruitment of able men."

Representative Jackson (D., Mich.) commented that the turnover in other Government departments is also heavy, and he said:

"If this is evidence of incredible mismanagement, there must be an awful lot of incredible mismanagement in government."

The joint committee authorized the request for the following documents from the AEC:

1. A record of all overtime paid to Washington headquarters of the Atomic Energy Commission.

2. The security files and local board hearings of a list of 27 persons. Hickenlooper turned over the list to the commission without making the names public.

3. The inventory turned over to the Atomic Energy Commission by the Manhattan District at the time of transfer of authority.

4. All reports, including correspondence with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, relating to lost or misplaced fissionable or source material, whether recovered or still missing.

5. The engineering reports on the reactor sites.

6. The reports of investigation of all fellows or participants in the fellowship program.

The commission promptly agreed to supply the documents requested by the committee.

McMahon said the committee, with Hickenlooper "not dissenting," decided to hold in abeyance for further consideration Hickenlooper's requests for the following:

1. All correspondence and records regarding the question of custody of atomic weapons.

2. Copies of all reports of all the commission's advisory committees, together with the status of their recommendations.

3. The minutes, progress reports and recommendations of the General Advisory Committee.

4. The minutes, progress reports and recommendations of the Military Liaison Committee.

5. The minutes of the Atomic Energy Commission.

6. Copies of the Quebec agreement on atomic energy; the Hyde Park aide memoire; memoranda relating to atomic energy in the Potsdam Conference; the paper stating the position of the United States to the United Kingdom of January, 1948.

Sales Tax Application Forms Will Be Ready Within 10 Days

Application forms for sales tax certificates will be made available at all District police station houses and firehouses within 10 days.

In addition, various business groups in the city will receive supplies of the one-page forms for use by members, Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent announced last night.

The forms will be available at police and fire units at all hours and at the 34 firehouses, specially instructed firemen will be designated to answer questions of merchants on filling out the applications.

The applications will contain spaces for chain store operators to make one over-all application for sales tax certificates instead of filing several individual ones, Dent said.

Yesterday Police Chief Robert J. Barrett ordered all precinct commanders to make a survey of all business establishments selling cigarettes, either retail or wholesale, across the counter or in vending machines. Such reports, which are due by June 14, will be used to check on whether affected concerns have applied for the necessary license to sell the cigarettes after August 1.

Deent and his aides met with representatives of the Hotel Association of Washington and Washington Restaurant Association yesterday to discuss problems of collecting taxes

'Apron-String' Rule Assailed by Marvin

"Socialized control" — including legislation "to care for the physical wants of our citizens"—was assailed here last night by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, at commencement exercises graduating 1361 university students.

"Call to mind the fraud that is now being practiced in the tight-woven British society in regard to socialized medicine," Martin said in his charge to the graduating class.

"When we legislate for any part of a planned economy, or to care for the physical wants of our citizens, we are favoring socialized controls."

The educator condemned the "apron-string concepts" of the socialized society, in which "the State supplants the overzealous mother" in men's minds and "weakened men turn more and more to Government for protection and sustenance."

The graduates at the 128th annual commencement exercises, held in the university yard, came from 46 States and 9 foreign countries.

Some 5000 persons attended the ceremonies, held outdoors for the first time since the university has been in its present location.

Four distinguished graduates of the university, recipients of Alumni Achievement Awards, were honored during the exercises.

Syngman Rhee, President of Korea, received the award for "achievement in service of his country"; Robert D. Murphy, director of the State Department's office of German and Austrian affairs, for "achievement in diplomacy"; Miss Edith M. Haydon, director of nurses and the school of nursing at St. Elizabeths Hospital, for "achievement in nursing," and Dr. Robert H. Harman, director of the university glee clubs for the past 25 years, for "achievement in choral leadership."

Dr. Marvin, in his address, warned that the "ceilings of the socialized state make for an overemphasis on the physical side of life.

"The frustration of repressive ceilings," he said, "leads to lack of faith, to nonsocial action, to despondency, to suicide, to the increase of crime, sex outrages, mental diseases, nervous disorders and dishonoring of the home."

He posed three choices that he said presented themselves to "our constitutional republic":

"We can develop an absolute collectivism, we can develop a socialized control, or we can maintain a democratic freedom, as a way of life.

Race Bars Here Factor in Bunche Rejection of Post

NYHT News Service

Race segregation in the Nation's Capital was an important factor in the refusal last week by Dr. Ralph J. Bunche to accept appointment as an Assistant Secretary of State, it was disclosed yesterday.

Though it was not revealed at the time, the Negro diplomat-educator, now senior director of the United Nations Trusteeship Council, took up the Jim Crow problem with both Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Undersecretary of State James E. Webb in declining the proffered post.

He also referred to it obliquely when he told President Truman at the White House that for "many reasons" he did not wish to take the job, the highest ever offered to a Negro in the Federal Government.

Dr. Bunche learned about racial segregation in the Capital during 28 years of residence here, first as a student and later as a professor at Howard University and finally as an official in the State Department.

U. N. Child Aid Bill Cleared to House

The House Rules Committee changed its mind yesterday and cleared for House action a bill providing an additional 21 million dollars for the United Nations Emergency Children's Fund.

The action was requested by the State and Agriculture Departments. The committee had tabled the legislation May 20.

Health Plan Will Help End Discrimination, Ewing Says

Federal Security Administrator Oscar R. Ewing last night told Negro physicians the President's plan for national health insurance will help wipe out racial discrimination.

It can also be readily extended, he said, to include nonworkers dependent on public assistance "by the simple procedure of having local public or private agencies pay the necessary premiums."

Ewing, who spearheaded development of the compulsory insurance plan now before Congress, spoke at a founders' dinner, at Hotel Dunbar, honoring founders of the Association of Former Internes of Freedmen's Hospital, now meeting in twenty-seventh annual convention.

He castigated counter measures, based on voluntary health insurance programs, as "nothing but the ancient idea of the dole" (the bills proposed by Senators Taft and Hill), and "involving unnecessarily complex and expensive administration . . . at base merely an effort to patch up the acknowledged deficiencies of the voluntary method," (the newest measure recently proposed by a group of Republican Senators and Representatives).

The Negro medical picture, Ewing told the doctors, is one of "need, misery and desperation almost beyond belief." Throughout the South, he said, there is but 1 Negro doctor for every 4900 patients, and in Mississippi the ratio drops to 1 in more than 18,000.

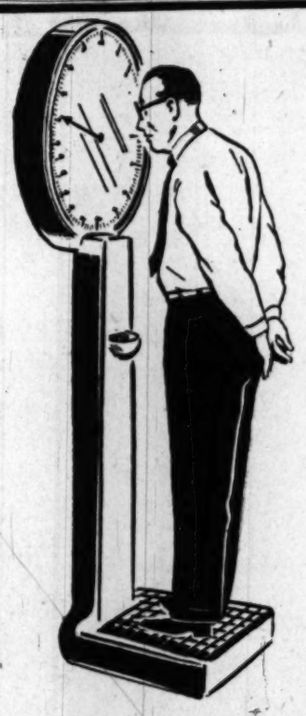
Savings Account becomes Champion Weightlifter!


There it was—the scale rudely pointed an accusing finger! I had gained 9 pounds. "Exercise," I mumbled, "a few sets of tennis and I'll be down to my proper weight."
So I played, or stumbled, through three sets. I wasn't any Bill Tilden—but I enjoyed the workout. The next morning I decided to go through an Oh-What-a-Beautiful-Morning routine, leap out of bed and greet the new day with open arms. I started to rise. Then it happened—I could scarcely move. Every muscle I knew, and some I'd never met, ached. I plopped back on my pillow and groaned, "If I'm in this shape at 34, what will I do when I'm 65? I won't be able to earn a living."
That's when it dawned on me that there was one worry I didn't have. My Columbia Federal Savings Account would help take care of me.

Andrews Show

Howitzer, Jeep 'Chute On Target

Andrews Air Base, Md., June 1. The Air Force's Troop Carrier boys were in the grocve today.

They staged a mock paratroop invasion of this base for the Aviation Writers Association and were dead on the target.

Earlier, two paratroopers from the Eighty-second Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N. C. received back injuries in a mass jump. Taken by ambulance to Bolling Air Base hospital, they were transferred to Walter Reed for x-rays. Army authorities withheld their names temporarily.

Pulled out of Fairchild Packet by a ribbon extraction parachute, a 3-ton 105-millimeter howitzer drifted down right over the reporters' heads, supported by two 100-foot diameter chutes. A jeep to pull it came next and also hovered directly overhead.

The howitzer, mounted on skids, settled easily down between a parked glider and liaison plane, narrowly missing the latter. Several dozen of the aviation reporters, cameramen, and Air Force officers had been on the spot, but scurried to safety seconds earlier.

Gun and jeep—which landed nearby—were in workable shape, ready for action.

Battle Lull Settles Along Changsha Line

Canton, June 1 (AP).—A lull—possibly before a storm of Chinese Communist attacks—settled today over the crucial Changsha front 400 miles to the north of Canton.

There were all sorts of reports and rumors of troop movements on both sides. These may presage the attack which government sources insist is coming soon.

(There was little civil war news elsewhere. Shanghai reported a Communist broadcast confirming the recent capture of Fenghwa, home town of Chiang Kai-shek.

Cyrenaica Free Nation

London, June 1 (U.P.).—The Arab chieftain in Cyrenaica announced the independence of that former Italian North African colony tonight just as Britain, which occupies it, offered it local self-government.

Britain already had prepared a statement announcing the local self-government plan when the startling news came from Benghazi that Emir Sayed Idriss el Sunussi had proclaimed Cyrenaica's complete independence and had promised to work for the unity of all Libya.

It is planned, the Foreign Office said, to invite the Emir, a long-time friend of Britain, to London for consultations.

Briton Warns Of Strike Crisis

London, June 1 (AP).—A Conservative Party labor expert, Eric Adamson, today declared Britain now is "facing what amounts to a general strike."

The comment was based on a variety of incidents. Freight handlers at five London depots and at Sheffield have slowed down work to press demands for higher pay. Railway men in the London area threaten to walk out June 13 unless their wages are boosted $2 a week.

Engine crews in northeast England and Scotland rejected pleas of both the government and the National Union of Railway Men to cancel their third "Sunday-only" strike this weekend. They are protesting work schedules under which 90 men spend Sundays away from home.

U. S. and Canada Begin Mobilization Plans

The United States and Canada started joint planning yesterday to mobilize their industries in the event of war.

Their new four-member Industrial Mobilization Committee, set up last month, held its first meeting. Officials said it was devoted largely to organization.

Both Canadian and U. S. Government officials were present with the board members at the initial meeting. Members include Harry J. Carmichael, chairman of Canada's Industrial Defense Board; Sidney Pierce, Canadian Associate Deputy Minister of Trade and Commerce; John R. Steelman, acting chairman of the U. S. National Security Resources Board, and Donald S. Carpenter, Munitions Board chairman.

Truman's Influence Put Behind Program to Arm Europe

By the United Press

Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb said yesterday that President Truman feels it is most urgent that Congress approve the $1,450,000,000 arms-for-Europe program at this session.

He told a news conference that Mr. Truman will submit the necessary legislation as soon as he reaches an agreement with congressional Democratic leaders on the proper time but in any event in time for action at this session.

Senate Democratic chieftains Tuesday gave repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law priority over ratification of the North Atlantic defense pact. They did not mention the pact's accompanying arms program.

Pact Ratification Believed Sure

White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said yesterday the schedule was drawn to the mutual satisfaction of Democratic Congressional leaders, the State Department and Mr. Truman.

Senate leaders believe ratification of the fact is a sure thing, but several have voiced doubt about the arms program. Chairman Connally (D., Tex.) of the Foreign Relations Committee has said he will not bring up the arms plan until the pact is out of the way.

Senator Watkins (R., Utah), meanwhile, proposed reservations to the security treaty which would require renegotiation of the entire alliance. Watkins, an opponent of the pact, moved to "safeguard the right of Congress to declare war."

He wants Article 5 changed to show that Congress is "not expressly, impliedly or morally obligated" to declare or authorize the use of United States military forces and retains complete freedom of action.

He also wants it made clear that the United States assumes no obligations to "restore and maintain" the security of the North Atlantic states or send military help to signatory nations unless Congress expressly oredsr it.

British Planes to Greeks

London, June 1 (U.P.).—Foreign Undersecretary Christopher Mayhew told Commons today that Britain had sold 74 fighter and bomber planes to Greece for use in her war against Communist guerillas. He said the Greek government had paid for the planes in dollars.

Hopeful of Peace

Attlee Sees Churchill On Defenses

London, June 1 (AP). — Prime Minister Attlee and Winston Churchill, the Conservative opposition leader, went into their first secret huddle today on the state of Britain's defenses.

Churchill, wartime prime minister, and other opposition spokesmen have been pressing in Commons for more assurances that Britain is prepared against any threat of war, and especially against any surprise attack.

Earlier today Churchill spoke at suburban Kensington and said he had a growing hope a third world war woul dbe averted.

"There was a time in 1935 and 1936 when I used to hear—In the famous lines— 'Ancestral voices prophesying war'," he said

"I have the growing hope that, by the strength of a United Civilization and by our readiness and preparedness to defend our freedom with our lives, we may avert forever the horrible vision of a third world war."

New York, June 1 (AP).—The magazine United Nations World says the Soviet Union has a new foreign policy line based on a report by Andrei A. Gromyko that restoration of cordial relations with the United States was feasible. It adds:

"The Politburo decision to ratify the Gromyko plan to work with the West represents a complete reversal of the 1947 Zhdanov plan, which was designed to work against the West, primarily through the rebaptized Comintern, the Cominform.

"Despite all this, the pro-Gromyko decision was hemmed in by typical Bolshevik safeguards against reverses. Soviet propaganda continues to support the old Zhdanov policy even while Soviet diplomacy works overtime to effectuate the Gromyko plan."

"People Do Not Want War"

Gromyko is first deputy Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union.

The magazine says its information is based on "access to some of the major directives dispatched from the Moscow chancellery to its dependencies in Eastern Europe."

It says Gromyko reported to Stalin:

"Russo-American rapprochement is feasible. The U. N. is the proper agency for composing United States - USSR differences. The American people do not want war. Mr. Truman is genuinely determined to preserve peace. The small group of American 'jingoists' is losing ground.

"United States economic aid to Russia and eastern Europe would be available once the political atmosphere cleared. United States would never allow the rebuilding of a Nazi Germany. United States distrusts Russian motives and only a genuine demonstration of good will can convince Americans that Russia sincerely wants peace."

Published Privately

What Gromyko told Stalin is said to have been based on confidential talks Gromyko had in May and June, 1948, with some 25 American industrialists and financiers.

The magazine, published privately, reports its publisher as Egbert White, who was an executive on Army publications during the war. Richard J. Walsh heads its editorial board.

Unionists Hear New Six-Year Plan for Poles

Warsaw, June 1 (AP).—Poland's government approved a new six-year plan today as trade unionists opened a national congress attended by leftist representatives from 16 nations.

The unionists' agenda includes the drafting of plans to speed production and exceed work targets in preparation for the new six-year plan.

President Boleslaw Bierut told the congress that Polish production at the end of the plan would be three and a half times that of prewar years. He said the national income would be trebled.

The cabinet said the plan would start before January 1. It said the object is to triple or quadruple output in every branch of productive activity. Goals of the first three-year plan, ending December 1, are being reached or exceeded all along the line, the cabinet declared.

The 2000 delegates to the five-day congress adopted the slogan, "Fight for peace and unmask imperialism." They plastered "We want peace" slogans all over the city.

Paul Robeson, American Negro singer, received a five-minute ovation. He spoke in Russian from the red-draped Rostrum, and concluded: "Long live Poland, long live President Bierut." He said he came from "the America of Wallace."

acceptance of conditions desired by one as the price for acquiescence in any action."

He suggested, therefore, that the council examine what is to be controlled and how, but Vishinsky was adamant, causing British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin to say he was "disappointed" at the way this conference was going. This time, he said, he had hoped for more in view of the agreement which led to the lifting of the Berlin blockade.

There was another exchange of views in which Acheson said the Western Powers were in Berlin by right, and the Soviet delegate intimated they were there because the Russians had agreed to let them be there.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman said the Berlin question was largely technical and probably could be solved once the voting procedure in a control body was settled. Vishinsky, however, refused to be drawn from his position and no discussion took place as to the fields in which the veto might be permitted.

Russia Asked To Make Good 3 Balkan Pacts

The United States and Britain yesterday called on Russia to join them in enforcing "human rights" guarantees in peace treaties with three Balkan nations.

All three countries, Hungary, Bulgaria and Romania, now have Communist governments. Should Russia take their part, as is expected here, the cases may be carried to the United Nations.

In making public its appeal to Russia, the State Department released notes from the three governments denying United States charges that the human rights clauses of the peace treaties had been violated. Besides these denials, the Balkan former enemies accused the United States of interfering in their internal affairs, fostering "fascism," and engaging in espionage.

Yesterday's move to invoke the enforcement machinery of the treaties followed a long series of complaints and accusations against the three former allies of Nazi Germany. The treaties provide that United States, British and Russian Ministers in each Balken capital be responsible for seeing that their terms are carried out and that "disputes" over the treaties be carried to the three major powers for settlement.

The United States charges that the Balkan satellites of Russia have denied religious and political freedom and fair trials to their peoples in violation of the treaties.

At a news conference yesterday Acting Secretary of State James E. Webb said the three Balkan governments had given unsatisfactory answers to United States protests and "show no willingness to remedy the situation."

"A large part of each reply," said Webb, "consists of familiar propaganda statements and of false accusations against "the United States. We shall not be distracted from the main issue by such tactics."

Fort Myer Soldier Held On Stolen Car Charge

A Fort Myer soldier, held by Fairfax County police after an accident Tuesday night, was charged yesterday with possession of a stolen car.

Police said Pvt. Donald J. White, 21, collided with a motorcycle at Seven Corners, injuring the motorcycle's riders, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Starry of Fairfax. White was arrested when he could produce no satisfactory evidence of ownership for his 1948 Buick, which bore Connecticut tags.

Berlin Rail Strikers to Vote On Latest Settlement Offer

Berlin, June 1 (NYHT).—Striking West Berlin railway worker will hold a referendum Thursday to determine whether they will accept the latest management offer.

The 12,000 strikers will have an opportunity to express their opinion on an offer which promises that 60 per cent of their salary will be paid in Westmarks and 40 per cent in the depreciated East-marks.

The offer falls short on two counts of satisfying union demands.

These call for full payment in Western currency; recognition of the striking non-Communist union, an affiliate of the independent workers organization (UGO), and no reprisals.

Interzonal freight traffic to Berlin from the west remained at a standstill today. The tie-up in the Berlin freight yards and the 100 miles of single track from the western zone is so great that the Soviets refuse to accept trains at the border.

U. S. Court Holds G-Man in Contempt

Chicago, June 1 (AP).—George R. McSwain, chief of the FBI office here, was held in contempt of the Federal Court today for refusing to produce his office records on the crime career of Roger (The Terrible) Touhy.

"I must respectfuly refuse to produce them," McSwain told Judge John P. Barnes. McSwain said he was acting on orders of his superiors.

"I'll punish the highest official who'll stand in his place," Judge Barnes announced.

The incident occurred at a hearing at which Touhy, a prohibition era gangster, is seeking release from Stateville prison on the ground that he was unjustly convicted of kidnaping John (Jake the Barber) Factor, promoter, 15 years ago.

Judge Barnes set Thursday for sentencing of McSwain and directed Touhy's attorney, Robert S. Johnstone, to study the law and determine what punishment could be inflicted.

When Johnstone suggested that McSwain be placed in the custody of the attorney general, Judge Barnes commented, "I'm not going to slap him on the wrist."

Touhy was sentenced to life imprisonment for kidnaping Factor. This is his third attempt to win freedom via the habeas corpus route. He broke out of the prison with a band of other desperadoes in 1942 but was caught in a bloody trap by the FBI.

Slot Machine Ballot Today

"Against licensing certain amusement devices."

If approved by voters, the law would:

Authorize annual license fees ranging from $25 to $1000 for console-type slot machines and pinball games.

No 'One-Arm Bandits'

Levy fines of $100 to $1000 for operation of machines without a license and forbid playing by persons under 18. Conventional "one-arm bandit" machines would be banned.

Require that applicants for licenses be registered county voters, property owners, and county residents for two years.

On referendum eve, the County Hotel and Restaurant Association, sole group publicly to advocate the measure, issued a statement urging approval on grounds that it would lighten the tax load, particularly on veterans.

On the other side, the County Council of Parent-Teacher Associations released a statement charging police could not enforce the ban against machine-playing by children, and that legalized gambling would drain money out of the county. The P-TA Council thus joined other civic groups and the clergy in opposing the plan.

Veteran Named in Plea

The Hotel and Restaurant Association, which hired a public relations firm to direct a publicity campaign, stated in its release:

"Now that he (the veteran) has returned to civilian life, trying to reconstruct his life and build a home and family life, some of the citizenry of our county cannot contribute to his needs by putting a few nickels in a slot machine. No, make the veteran pay for it all by raising his taxes."

The group argued that license fees would yield the equivalent of a 15-cent tax per $100 on real and personal property. This, it said, would "do a big job" in furnishing services for veterans.

"Yet when a means of raising money in lieu of property taxes is proposed, some persons are morally horrified. To them making money on a gambling device is reprehensible.

"But it was all right for a soldier or sailor or Marine or airman to gamble his life in the fortunes of war."

Appeal by P-TA

The County Council of P-TAs urged "all county voters to go to the polls June 2 and vote against the licensing of certain amusement machines' otherwise known as slot machines.

"The police are not able to stop the machines now in the county from being used illegally by payoffs 'over the counter.'

"It is obvious that it will be impossible for them to prevent children and 'tee-agers from playing the large number of machines that will be in the county if the law passes."

While county officials anticipate $250,000 in license fees, the PT-A Council said, some five to six million dollars would be netted by an expected 1100 machines.

"It is easy to see who would make all the money if the 'nickel bandits' are voted in and it won't be the county."

License Appeal

Bondsman Asks to Keep Judges Out

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday was urged to refuse permission to the District Court judges to enter the case of John W. Carter, former bondsman, whose bonding license was revoked by District Court order in 194".

The motion to deny District Court entry was filed in the Appellate Court yesterday by attorneys for Carter who declared that the arguments to be presented by the District Court, if it is allowed to participate, would only be a reiteration of arguments already given by the United States Attorney for the District as friend of the court.

Carter had appealed the order revoking his license, on the ground that the license was a property right and could only be taken from him by "due process of law."

The revocation order stemmed from an application for the license in which Carter failed to indicate

Liquor Board Considering Case of Plantation Grill

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday took under advisement charges against the Plantation Grill, operated by Irving Erstein at 1819 14th st. nw.

Erstein, accused of permitting gambling and consumption of whisky on the premises, though limited by license to the sale of beer and light wines, is threatened with revocation of his license.

At yesterday's hearing before ABC board chairman Alan Payne, Policeman Philip W. Broome testified that he watched two men betting $3 a game on the pinball machine on January 29 and said that he had been arrested on number charges and once for alleged violation of the Stolen Property Act. He was not convicted on either charge.

Erstein, too, stood and watched several games.

On the morning of February 2, Broome testified, he gave "Bill Mosely" (identified later as Bill Moser, 2905 13th st. nw.) a bartender at the Grill, $1.50 for a half pint of whisky, which he consumed with Moser in the men's room.

Erstein testified he had instructed his employes that he wanted no gambling on the premises, and said he removed the pinball machine in April, after he was informed that a criminal charge of permitting gambling had been lodged against him. The charge was later dropped in District Court.

Asked if he had ever seen gambling going on on his premises, Erstein said, "I've seen it and I've stopped it."

4 Policemen Lose Suit to Block Promotions of Others

The suit of four Metropolitan Police sergeants to block other officers' promotions until they are included is out of court today.

Federal Judge Matthew F. McGuire granted on oral motion Tuesday to enter summary judgment for the District, which was the defendant. He is scheduled to sign a written order confirming his oral decision.

Plaintiffs were Sergts. Phillips Burton, Sidney F. Malone, William E. Rogers, and Edward H. Ring. They asked that no promotions to the grade of lieutenant be allowed until they were included in the promotion list.

Oliver Gasch, assistant Corporation Counsel, contended, and the sergeants addmitted, that though they act in that grade, they are carried on the payroll and Civil Service lists as corporals, due to budget shortages. Gasch argued, and Judge McGuire agreed, that as corporals, they were ineligible for promotion to lieutenancies.

Margaret O'Brien's Mother Crying Too

Hollywood, June 1 (AP).—Margaret O'Brien's mother and Orchestra Leader Don Sylvio can't agree on whether their marriage should be annulled.

Mrs. Sylvio says she is going to sue for annulment of their marriage last February 22 at Palm Beach, Fla. She says they haven't lived together as man and wife. Sylvio says that if she sues he'll contest "because, first of all I love her, and then she has no grounds for annulment; the marriage has been consummated."

Mrs. Sylvio says 12-year-old Margaret had nothing to do with her decision to seek dissolution of the marital union" although she is very happy about the whole thing."

Margaret's studio, MGM, disclosed today that she has requested and been granted release from the contract that has been paying her $3000 a week.

Margaret stormed and cried before and during her mother's marriage.

MOTHER PLANS ANNULMENT—This picture of Margaret O'Brien (center) and her mother, Mrs. Gladys O'Brien Sylvio, and stepfather, Don Sylvio, orchestra leader, was made in Palm Beach, Fla., last February after the couple's marriage. Humphrey Asks Civil Rights Action

"Open and holy matrimony between liberal Republicans and Democrats, instead of the present illicit love coalition" was urged by Senator Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) last night as a means to obtain civil rights legislation.

Warning there is not enough time in this session of Congress to pass all needed civil rights legislation," he said liberals should concentrate in support of the civil rights bill proposed by Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.).

This bill, Humphrey told a dinner meeting sponsored by the National Civil Liberties Clearing House in the YWCA, would:

Set up a civil rights commission; strengthen the Justice Department's civil rights section; make segregation illegal on interstate carriers; set up a congressional watchdog committee on civil rights; incorporate into law liberal decisions of courts on civil rights.

Representative Jacob Javits (R., N. Y.) also indorsed "a bipartisan basis in enlisting support for civil rights legislation."

He said existence of discrimination in this country is a powerful weapon being used to advantage by Russia in the cold war.

Court Permits D. C. Auto Dealer to Keep Hesse Gem

A Washington automobile dealer may keep one of the famous Hesse jewels, under a ruling of Federal District Judge Alexander Holtzoff yesterday.

Judge Holtoff granted a mandatory injunction sought by John Burrows, the dealer, of 9th and M sts. se., to force the Government to return the gem to him. He obtained it from Col. Jack W. Durant who is serving a 15-year sentence for stealing $1,500,000 worth of jewelry from the House of Hesse at Kronberg Castle near Frankfurt, Germany.

Burrows obtained the diamond from Durant in an automobile deal for a sum between $500 and $600. Government appraisers valued it at $2600. Burrows turned it over to Army authorities for use in the court martial of Colonel Durant and his wife, who was a Wac captain.

After the court martial, the Army decided to return the diamond to the Hesse family, and Burrows sued. Wolfgang, Prince of Hesse, and Margarethe, Landgraffe of Hesse, entered the case in an attempt to recover the gem.

Judge Holtzoff held that Burrows purchased the diamond in good faith from a man then in possession of it, and that the Hesse family did not sufficiently identify it as one of the jewels stolen to invalidate Burrows' claim to it.

Woodson Rites Set for Today

Funeral services for Lewis B. Woodson, 50, assistant general counsel of the Public Housing Administration, will be held today at 1 p. m. in Fort Myer Chapel.

The services will be conducted by Mr. Woodson's brother, Dr. Robert S. Woodson, assisted by another brother, Dr. Marshall Woodson. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Woodson died Tuesday following a heart attack at his home, 3951 Langley ct. nw., McLean Gardens.

He began his government career in 1933 as an attorney with the Public Works Administration and became a regional attorney for the Agriculture Department in Montgomery, Ala., the following year.

After a short tour with the Federal Works Administration in 1941, he came to FHA.

A native of Indianapolis, he graduated from Presbyterian College, Columbia, S. C., and received his law degree from the University of South Carolina. He was prominent in athletics at both institutions. Prior to entering Government service he practiced law in St. Louis and Chicago.

Mr. Woodson was a member of the bars of South Carolina, Oklahoma, Missouri and Texas. He also was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Neese Boggs Woodson; a sister, Mrs. Thad McNaull of Charlotte, N. C.; his brothers, Dr. Robert Woodson of Yazoo City, Miss., and Dr. Marshall Woodson of Thomasville, Ga., and a niece, Miss Marianna Woodson of Washington.

Mrs. Burnie D. Summers

Mrs. Burnie Dutton Summers, 66, retired Federal employe, died yesterday in New Orleans, La.

Mrs. Summers, who had been in poor health since her retirement two years ago, was visiting her son, William D. Summers, with whom she had spent the past two winters.

In addition to her son, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Belva D. Keyes, of 1818 Ontario rd. nw., and four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 11 a. m. at St. Timothy's Episcopal Church, Herndon. Burial will be in Chestnut Hill Cemetery.

Slaying Case Going to Jury

A District Court jury today must decide whether Earl E. Hatcher, 24, former mailman, was insane when he shot and killed a fellow passenger, George Janey, 1230 Wylie st. ne., on a trolley car November 17, 1946, after the latter had bumped him.

Defense and Government attorneys yesterday began final arguments in the second-degree murder case after three psychiatrists gave opposing viewpoints as to Hatcher's sanity at the time of the slaying. The case will be placed in the hands of the jury today.

Hiss—Chambers

The trial in New York of Mr. Alger Hiss, which at this writing has just got beyond the phase of the opening statements of prosecution and defense, shows how severely our traditional legal usages are being strained by the conspiratorial character of modern politics. First of all the charge upon which Mr. Hiss is being tried is merely incidental to the real offense of which he has been accused. He is charged with perjury, but the charge is based upon his testimony under oath before a Federal grand jury that he had never given any confidential documents of the Department of State to Mr. Whittaker Chambers to be transmitted to Soviet espionage agents. Thus in order to sustain the charge of perjury the Government must satisfy the jury that the documents were actually abstracted, as Mr. Chambers has alleged.

But even if it is proved that Mr. Hiss collaborated in a grandiose conspiracy of Soviet spies and American Communists, this of itself could not be made the basis of any criminal charge. It would not amount to treasonable conduct in the legal sense, since treason is defined as giving aid and comfort to enemies of the United States. At the time of the alleged intimacy between Mr. Hiss and Mr. Chambers the United States and Soviet Russia were technically upon a relation of friendship, and remain so even today.

Mr. Hiss' attorney, Mr. Lloyd Paul Stryker, in a pro forma motion for a dismissal of the indictment, has also raised the question of jurisdiction. The purpose of the convocation of the grand jury that indicted Mr. Hiss was the investigation of espionage activities. But Mr. Hiss' espionage activities, if there were such activities, occurred in Washington or in Baltimore. Thus, Mr. Stryker argued, the grand jury had exceeded its limitations. Finally, the indictment was invalidated by the statute of limitations.

All these points are important legally, and no doubt much will be made of them if Mr. Hiss is convicted and the verdict appealed. At the same time they have nothing to do with the real question, which is whether Mr. Hiss flagrantly betrayed the confidence imposed in him as a high officer of the United States Government.

The case of course will turn mainly on the credibility of Mr. Chambers' testimony. Under the law, however, it is necessary to support this testimony by other evidence. Mr. Thomas Murphy, the assistant district attorney, has indicated the character of the corroborative evidence. The Government will introduce experts to show that some of the microfilmed documents surrendered by Mr. Chambers from his famous pumpkin were in Mr. Hiss' handwriting and others were typewritten on a machine once owned by Mr. Hiss.

The trial is likely to be a protracted one, with each step contested by one side or the other. But, no matter how it ends, an enigma will remain. In the one event we shall have still the enigma of Mr. Hiss' conduct, in the other the enigma of Mr. Chambers'.

Birdshot

Senator Hickenlooper's opening assault on David E. Lilienthal yesterday produced none of the sensational proofs of atomic energy mismanagement which the public had been led to expect. After demanding a mountain of documents from the Atomic Energy Commission, Mr. Hickenlooper concentrated on citing the number of key employes who for one reason or another had left the commission. He also showed a considerable preoccupation with the outward forms of security, without defining very clearly just what security is.

Perhaps the Iowa Senator has more in mind than he has indicated so far, and he deserves the opportunity to develop his case further. But his approach seems to be one of fragmentation. It is hardly surprising in a new enterprise, for example, that there has been a fairly rapid turnover of personnel; this is part of the normal shakedown process and does not of itself prove the "incredible mismanagement" Mr. Hickenlooper charges. Nor does the commission's unwillingness to place the narrow concept of "security"—that is, secrecy—above everything else show an uncpncern for legitimate safeguards. As Mr. Lilienthal observed after Senator Hickenlooper tried to put words in his mouth, security is important, but production is even more important.

Indeed, in his seeming desire to "get" Mr. Lilienthal, Mr. Hickenlooper overlooks the fact that there are five members of the Atomic Energy Commission. Mr. Lilienthal is in a position roughly analagous to that of the Chief Justice; he is the ceremonial head of the commission but sits on an equal basis with his four colleagues. Moreover, the function of the commission proper is to make policy, and there have been only five dissents in some 500 formal decisions. Supervision of the details of Atomic Energy Commission operations is a responsibility of the general manager—who is appointed not by the commission, but by the President with the consent of the Senate.

There is a great need for someone to appraise intelligently the work of the Atomic Energy Commission. As one example, it seems to us that the building of a natural gas pipeline to Oak Ridge is a decision that ought to be questioned. But it is of the utmost importance that the persons doing the appraising not become so wrapped up in details that they are unable to distinguish the forest from the trees. In other words, the commission ought to be judged on the totality of its work. That is impossible if the intent of the investigation is to heap "blame" on one man.

Senator Hickenlooper raises another pertinent question in his request for Atomic Energy Commission documents. These papers, even security files, he is entitled to see as a member of the special congressional committee which occupies a unique position with respect to atomic energy. But these documents have been available to Mr. Hickenlooper all along, and some of them, such as the Potsdam discussions on atomic energy, ought to be in his own committee files. The things Mr. Hickenlooper is talking about are not new developments, and he is the ranking minority member of the committee appointed to keep tab on the Atomic Energy Commission. As recently as January, Mr. Hickenlooper spoke favorably of the commission's work in a speech at Baltimore. What has caused his sudden change of opinion? Has he been asleep in committee, or are there other angles to his investigation that have not come to the surface?

Memorandum On Asia

The State Department seems to be in halting quest of a comprehensive policy which will meet the challenge of Asia-in-ferment. The quest is tardy—perhaps because of preoccupations in Europe as well as the stated need to wait till the dust in China has settled. In this respect the diplomats have erred on the side of honesty. Traditionally the thing to do when people are yelling for action is to do something even when nothing can be done. That, we believe, is in the rulebook of all the Old World chancelleries.

However, something now can be done to good purpose. That the effort is being made is indicated by a general clearing of the decks. Some recent events show this process at work:

1. In Japan, which must be the stepping off place of a new policy in Asia, reparations at long last have been wound up.

2. In Indonesia and in Indo-China there has been an amelioration of the imperialistic approach of the colonial powers—which will put the Western powers in a position to start the now-acknowledged campaign of driving a wedge between nationalism and Russian communism in Asia.

3. The commonwealth has been reorganized on a new basis linking India, Pakistan and Ceylon in a new association with the British nations—a new association which has embarked on a help-Burma program.

4. Premier Nehru, the leader of authentic Asian nationalism (who, but for British wisdom, might today be a leader of the subversive forces in Asia), is coming to the United States before the year is over to confer with President Truman and Secretary Acheson.

It is appropriate in the light of the present deck-clearing to make a summary of the steps which have been urged piecemeal in these columns for dealing with the historic crisis in continental and teeming Asia.

1. Military Policy: The idea of a Pacific pact modeled on the Atlantic Pact has been rejected. Presumably the reason is the fluid state of China and, indeed, of Chinese communism. But this should not rule out a military posture in Asia—based upon the establishment of international centers or zones of security, from the Japan Sea to the Bay of Bengal. Necessary zones are few in number. Where they should be is a matter for the strategists to settle after the principle has been accepted in common. They should be defense outposts, dedicated to anti-aggression. After the argument over Indonesia, it might be hard to win Indian consent to this, though Nehru has as much interest as any Westerner in resisting aggression and maintaining a skeleton order in Asia. Plainly the zones should include Formosa and, if it isn't too late, Britain's Hongkong.

The status of Formosa in this framework requires immediate consideration. Japan's former island in the China Sea could be set aside as an international zone of security without further ado, and should be. For the Cairo Declaration on Japan is as null and void in fact as the Potsdam agreement on Germany. This declaration, it will be remembered, put Japan on notice that in the peace treaty the map of the Far East would be put back to 1895—thus restoring Formosa to China and Manchurian rail and port concessions to Russia. But Russia already has reduced the declaration to a scrap of worthless paper. She has looted Manchuria to the tune of three billions of Japanese and Chinese assets; she has slammed the door in the face of the nations against free entry at the "free" port of Dairen; she has virtually seized Manchuria. The Manchurian concessions, in other words, have been used as the entering wedge for the most gigantic steal in postwar history.

The Cairo Declaration, then, is a frustrated contract, as the lawyers say. An explanation that the powers are acting on this assumption, and intend to hold Formosa in trust pending a peace treaty with Japan, would be due the Chinese people, and it should be given in full with all the propaganda devices at the American disposal. If this is not done soon, the Nationalist rabble, who are now washing up on Formosa, are bound to keep the island in a ferment, squeeze the islanders out of whatever they have got left, and endanger the security of the occupation of Japan and the strategy of the Far East, even if the Chinese Communists don't come after them. The worry should not be how to cling to Chiang Kai-shek's bandwagon, but how to get off it. Specifically the powers should treat the generalissimo, if he retires to Formosa, as an exile in trustee territory.

2. Commercial Policy: Announcement should be made that the outline of a Marshall Plan for Asia is being studied—that is to say, a real Marshall Plan, not the Operation Rathole which has gone by that phrase in China. This plan should be developed only for the purpose of clearing out old trade channels and creating new channels. A place must be found for Japanese trade, and the energy now devoted to making Americans out of the Japanese should be devoted to the task of commercial rehabilitation as one of the tasks in speeding the day to Japanese independence. At present Japan has no place to go, for America is forever out of the market for Japanese silk on the scale that used to sustain prewar Japan. Premier Chang Chun, now in Szechwan Province, said some sensible things about a restoration of Sino-Japanese trade before the debacle in Nanking. No ideology will be able to conquer the trade instincts of the Chinese, Communists included; and, if inter-Allied procrastination still rules out a firm declaration against aggression in Hongkong, this might yet save that great British entrepot for China trade.

In time to come there may be reason, also, to consider what can be done under the aegis of Point IV, though India is a candidate for immediate consideration in this particular.

3. Political Policy: A new effort to re-establish cooperation between the Atlantic powers and the commonwealth powers must be and, judging from reports in England, is being made. Policy in concert focused on the Open Door of nondiscrimination has always been the rule in policy in the Far East. The United States ignored this in 1927 and pursued a unilateral policy toward the then revolutionaries under Chiang Kai-shek. It was America in those days that had kept out of the preceding mess, so that when the dust had settled its stock was highest of all countries. This time the situation is reversed. This time the danger of unilateralism comes from other Westerners. Some of them feel, judging from Mr. Stewart Alsop's dispatches from Hongkong and from the American owned Shanghai Evening Post, that in view of Chinese reaction to America's Canute-like interventionism in behalf of Chiang Kai-shek they are in a position to steal an advantage at a discomfited America's expense. Toward a cocky Communist China which has not yet faced the facts of international life there must be, in the individual and the common defense, a solidarity in the diplomatic approach and in all relations pending the day of a common recognition.

For The Kids

Some of our subscribers, we have been told, read the editorial page before they turn to the sports and entertainment columns. How many of these people there may be we don't know. But lest they may have thought the National Celebrities Golf Tournament and the Arthur Godfrey show this weekend are just for the diversion of sports lovers and the Godfrey fans, this is to set them right. This weekend of fun will have a serious purpose, viz, help for the less-fortunate children of Washington.

As in the past two years, the proceeds of the two affairs will go into the fight against juvenile delinquency. In 1947 the Boys Club of Washington and the Metropolitan Police Boys Club shared the income. Last year four activities devoted to providing summer camps or other facilities for underprivileged boys and girls of Washington divided the $15,400 "take." We think young citizens deserve something more than street corner gymnasiums, something more than curbstone seats in the school of life. We hope you will support us in the endeavor to give them something better.

This is largely a labor of love, not only for ourselves, but perhaps even more for all the generous persons from so many walks of life who are coming at their own expense to play in the tournament or appear in Arthur Godfrey's show. We are deeply appreciative of their help toward making this third Celebrities affair a greater success than its predecessors. It will be hours of fun for us grown-ups but years of fun for the youngsters who get the benefit.

THE MAN WHO SAT NEXT ME IN THE CLUB CAR

I remember. But you said, "Remembrance
Is done with. Let the dead past bury the dead.
To think of Rome is to be as good as buried . .
Today, and tomorrow, count," was what you said.

But I remember. Cherishing yesterday's sunlight . . .
Rain the day before that . . . and even snow . .
Though the word fail, I can still remember.
One day is such a little thing to know.

Alaskan Timber Lands

The House Appropriations Committee deserves the gratitude of all decent Americans for the action against which William L. Baker, editor and publisher of the Ketchikan Alaska Chronicle protests in his letter of May 23.

The nine million dollars which the House Appropriations Committee refused to appropriate for pulp mill access roads in Alaska would have been spent to consummate a scheme which competent critics have called the most outrageous land grab since Teapot Dome.

Twenty-three Protestant denominations, represented by the Home Missions Council, as well as leading Protestant, Catholic, Jewish, and non sectarian civic organizations and magazines have protested against this scheme, which contemplates relieving the Alaskan Indians of their valuable timberlands and turning their timber over for a song to favored companies.

In the face of these Nation-wide protests, the scheme has been having tough sledding. Several responsible firms have decided not to deal in "hot" timber. Mr. Baker and some of his associates have therefore undertaken to secure substantial Federal subsidies for less squeamish investors. Scruple-swallowing timber companies were informally promised nine million dollars of public funds for private timber roads which they would otherwise have had to pay for themselves.

Such roads would serve no public purpose; they would lie within a private lumber company empire; they would be used for transporting what the Catholic Commonweal calls "expropriated timber" taken from "displaced Alaskans." These roads would represent the final step in what the Christian Century calls "the plundering of our oldest racial minority."

Coffee Tastes

Your columns have recently contained some interesting and enlightening matter about coffee and tea. These items have emboldened me to raise anew an old issue persisting here almost universally.

In well ordered meals there should be a big difference between the liquid which goes in a cup of breakfast coffee, and what is put in a demi tasse and served after a good evening dinner. The difference is not merely the size of the cup and the fact that our demi tasse is often taken black, if one goes back to the best European tradition in such matters.

Cafe noir, as it is called in France as all travelers know, is after-dinner coffee served black in a small cup; and should consist of very strong Java or Mocha having a distinctly "black" taste, verging almost on the bitter. The French, to our American taste, sin just as badly when they serve this same coffee for breakfast with hot milk, as we do when we serve ordinary, excellent, black breakfast coffee in a demi tasse after a good dinner.

Even the dreadful chicory-flavored British breakfast coffee does not always taste too bad after dinner, compared to what one gets here. I try to get along with Brazilian coffee made five times as strong as is normal for breakfast, but it is not a wholly satisfactory makeshift.

Democratic Weakness

Both the strength and the weakness of a democratic form of Government are combined in its basic principle—universal suffrage. The founders of the outstanding democracies imposed certain restraints calculated to minimize the weakness.

In addressing himself to the subject, Dean Inge of England expressed a great truth in so few words as to seem sheer genius: "Now that democracy has freed itself of salutary checks and balances, it stands revealed as a Government by mass bribery, where the biggest bribers will usually be in power."

It was first Lloyd George in England and then Woodrow Wilson in America who were "the villains in the piece;" the first by stripping the House of Lords of most of its authority, and the second by bringing about the popular election of Senators instead of by the State Legislatures. In both cases, wise checks upon pressure groups and popular clamor were lost.

What better evidence to justify Dean Inge's indictment could be adduced than the insistence of the present Administration upon heeding the demands of various pressure groups for socialized medicine, expanded social security, crop insurance, Federal aid to education and the repeal of the Taft-Hartley law?

Does our present form of Government carry the seeds of its own destruction?

Answer To Pearson

I take note of the "Pearson Replies" communication in your May 30 issue.

In this alibi to the millions of Americans who were outraged by his attack on the late James V. Forrestal over the radio, Mr. Pearson admits his poor sportsmanship by stating: "At the time of my radio references to Mr. Forrestal's illness he was under sedatives; was not permitted to listen to any radio programs or read the newspapers."

Immediately after the surrender of Japan, Mr. Pearson used his newspaper column and a national radio network to incite a country-wide demand from relatives of our soldiers that they be immediately demobilized. This resulted in riots within our Army and forced the premature demobilization of our forces. During all this time Mr. Forrestal was struggling to prevent this degeneration of our armed forces.

Mr. Pearson makes capital of his expose of Congressman Thomas, who formerly headed the Un-American Activities Committee, as a part of his latest alibi. While no good American will condone wrongdoing by any Congressman, nevertheless it is a fact that Pearson and Mr. Winchell had led a systematic attack on the Un-American Activities Committee and its members for many years before Mr. Thomas' association with it.

As for those who have sprung to the defense of Mr. Pearson, citing the time-worn "freedom of the press" dodge—it sounds suspiciously like the old party line. Where, we ask, does freedom of the press end, and license begin?

"Pay Demagoguery"

Your service pay editorial of May 27 is entirely at variance with the facts and an injustice to Congressmen who had no option as decent men but to recommit after failure of their attempts to improve the bill reported by the House Armed Services Committee.

Despite the representations of the Armed Services Committeemen—echoed in ignorance by the daily papers—the bill reported was not the Hook Commission bill.

To be sure, the rates were those recommended by Hook, but the four civilians made it clear that in recommending those scales their proposals had to be taken as a whole. And those proposals stressed a raising of retirement ages.

Now the House committee dropped all the retirement proposals, arguing with some persuasiveness that the entire question of retirement had been gone into by Congress in three separate laws within the past three years. I do not quarrel with that action, but when the retirement feature of the bill were dropped, then the rates themselves had no validity.

It is elemental that if X dollars is deemed to be the appropriate pay for a serviceman from whom a certain number of years of service are to be obtained before he is to receive a high percentage of X for a number of years in retired status, then X is too high for the man from whom 10 years' less service can be obtained and who must be paid for 10 years longer in retired status while his replacement also is paid.

It should be noted that before the House vote the Hook Commission urged the committee to reduce the rates but got nowhere. Had the Case 5 and 3 per cent cut amendment been adopted—it lost 85 to 103—it is my firm belief the House would have passed the bill.

Dropping the retirement features without changing the rates resulted in a vastly more expensive bill than the Hook Commission proposed.

How did the House Armed Services Committee go about remedying that?

First, they terminated all family allowances in six months instead of at the end of an enlistment, as Hook proposed. The Carroll amendment remedied this departure from the Hook plan.

Second, they threw out the Hook proposal of $15 oversea pay for all enlisted grades and substituted a sliding scale of $8 to $22.50. The result of this was not to give a 3 per cent increase to the sixth enlisted grade, as the daily papers stated, but to cut the pay of this grade and of the next higher fifth grade. Hook never recommended more money for the colonels and generals at the expense of these lower enlisted grades.

Finally, they moved effective date of the increases from a planned July 1 to October 1—a further blow at the lowest grades and the family allowance group.

Higher ranking officers deserve a pay increase and if the House committee will now return to Hook principles they can get a bill Congressmen can accept. The committee must (1) adopt the Carroll family allowance amendment, preferably with a provision that no man will get an increase in pay while drawing allowances, (2) return to the carefully drawn Hook $15 oversea pay, and (3) either adopt the Hook retirement plan or cut Hook rates by 3 to 5 per cent, to the nearest even dollar.

Evening Up Money Power

Feminine Finance

THE FINANCIAL Seneca Falls now taking place in this country is not turning out to be so funny as was expected. True, women's amazing burst of interest in finance has not been greeted with anything like the ridicule and jeering that attended the suffrage convention of 1848 in Seneca Falls, N. Y. But some wit has been attempted over the feminine rush to investment classes and over women's new self-assertiveness in stockholders' meetings—and it has fallen flat.

Questions asked at the investment classes have frequently shown so much technical knowledge and economic understanding as to surprise those conducting the classes. Nor has the expected comedy for financial writters come off in stockholders' meetings where representatives of the newly organized Women Shareholders in American Business, Inc., are being increasingly seen and heard.

No one can attend one of the current investment classes now being conducted in 35 cities (and soon to be expanded to 98) by a large investment firm without realizing that something revolutionary is going on in women's world. Women have not only virtually mobbed these classes for admittance, but have listened and done their homework with tremendous seriousness. This indicates that their figurehead status in regard to the large amount of wealth in their name may eventually end.

THE MAKE-UP of these classes is significant. Not bediamonded dowagers nor "solid" genteel widows predominate, but rather average housewives and employed women. Most of these are interested in the $3000, $5000 and $10,000 investment portfolios. The number of young women planning their investment future is surprising. So also is the number of women who can talk about "call prices," "margins" "cumulative preferreds."

Colleges are awaking to this feminine hunger to know more about money. New York University has a lecture course on "Management of Personal Funds," a step occasioned partly by the great increase in stock ownership by women investors.

Another straw in the financial wind is the way in which Mrs. Wilma Soss, president of the women shareholders' organization, is showing up at stockholders' meetings with proxies, asking pertinent questions and demanding more readable financial reports—also more women on boards of directors. The last request occasioned much bantering when first made at a stockholders' meeting of a New York bank. Later wearing a gay 90s outfit (to dramatize feminine standing in the money world) Mrs. Soss made a similar request at a meeting of stockholders of the United States Steel Corp.

Typical of feminine practicality is the way this women's group is trying to induce the Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey) to hold stockholders' meetings in New York instead of the inconvenient Hoboken, N. J., usually reached by slow ferry. The oil company with typical masculine traditionalism insists its annual meetings "have always been held in Hoboken."

MANY WOMEN seem to be realizing their weakness as "second class citizens," which results from what Miss Dorcas Campbell, assistant vice president of the East River Savings Bank of New York, calls their "economic illiteracy." Recently Mis Campbell called on women to cease being "financial prisoners" merely because of the tradition that they "couldn't understand about money." She pointed out that most of the wealth in their names was put there for men's convenience, that generally they exercised little or no control of it, and that their mental laziness in finance was handicapping them politically, professionally and in the home.

Feminine finance has had its occasional Hetty Green, and industry its occasional Mary Dillon (who recently retired as president of the Brooklyn Borough Gas Co.) And women have largely taken over the spending power (on a sort of secretarial basis) of the home. But until recently the old idea has hung on that any woman with money to invest should rush to her banker, lawyer, male relatives or friends—seek the advice of almost anyone in trousers.

And women generally haven't bothered to watch, study and keep up with the industries or properties in which their money was invested. Now if they become more literate financially, a better balance of money power between them and men may be achieved—a balance that should benefit both.

Unripe Fruit

The Governor and Legislature of Florida have prohibited the shipment of green fruit; that is, unripe fruit which is often poisonous and tasteless. I am sure millions of people of the North will thank Florida for protecting their health in this way. They can enjoy a delicious ripe Florida orange without being in danger of having a tasteless unripe orange forced on them.

Today and Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Mr. Hoover And J. Q. Adams

LIPPMANN

MR. HOOVER'S own career illustrates an important aspect of the problem of Government on which his commission has just completed its massive report. Mr. Hoover retired from public office 17 years ago. During those 17 years of the New Deal and of the war the functions of Government expanded enormously, creating that very complexity, confusion and waste which the new Hoover blueprints are designed to cure.

In all that time Mr. Hoover was only an eminent private citizen, an outsider who had no opportunity and no right to take part in preventing the disorders as they were being produced by ill-considered laws and executive orders. He could make complaining speeches and he could issue statements criticizing the work of his successor. But being an outsider, he could not speak with the constructive authority of real knowledge of the crises in which the Government was expanding, and therefore he was discounted as a partisan critic. How much better it would have been if during those 17 years the former President had had as a matter of right a responsible part in the Government about which he had learned so much. Then he would have been able to deal with the efficiency of Government continuously over 17 years, not merely in one encyclopedic report which almost no one will ever even read the whole of.

IN AN interview given to the United States News and World Report, Mr. Hoover has agreed that it would be a good thing if ex-Presidents had a seat in the Senate with all the privileges except voting. At the age of 75 Mr. Hoover does not, as he points out, want that privilege for himself. But we may note that had he as a matter of right take a seat in the Senate in 1932 when he was 58 years of age, the Senand the country would have had the benefit of his experience during 17 critical years.

There is an inherent absurdity in the American practice of discarding ex-Presidents, and indeed other high officials, just when by the hardest and surest way they have acquired wisdom in Government and public affairs. This absurdity has nothing to do with the Constitution. It is simply a bad habit which can be corrected whenever the American people wake up to the fact that the quality of a Government like the quality of an Army is maintained by bringing the raw recruits into contact with seasoned troops. The blueprints of reorganization, like the manuals of drill, are useful. But what really counts the most is that those who have fresh energy but are without experience should mix with those who, though they are beginning to be tired, have learned the facts of life.

ONE ex-President, and so far as I know only one, has shown how unreasonable and unnecessary it is to discard our high officials. John Quincy Adams, after one term, was not only overwhelmingly defeated by Andrew Jackson in the election of 1828, but his party, the Federalist, was split and Adams found himself repudiated by a large section of it. He retired to his home in Quincy, Mass., where he tried to find something to do by reading books, tending to his farm, and planning to write history. Then about 1830 he was asked to run for Congress. Unlike all other ex-Presidents, and indeed most ex-Senators and ex-Cabinet officers, John Quincy Adams did not think it beneath his dignity to become a member of the lower House.

He was elected, and then re-elected eight times, serving, as it happened, for 17 years. His biographer, W. C. Ford, says that in those 17 years after his defeat for the Presidency "he entered upon years of influence and combat which made his congressional service unique and quite the most important part of his career . . . at the time of his election no member had sat in the House who possessed such varied experience and appropriate qualities. He was familiar with the inside political history of 40 years abroad and at home."

WHY, it is interesting to ask, has no one else followed the example of John Quincy Adams? I can think of only two reasons, which may be aspects of the same underlying reason. It is that men who have had the great dignities of very high office think it beneath them to take a lower office, and in any event beneath them to scratch for votes to get themselves elected to a lower office.

But that could be cured by giving ex-Presidents a seat, without voting rights, in the Senate. And perhaps—if it is not too daring an idea—we could go further and give ex-Cabinet officers, who have served with distinction, a seat without voting rights in the House—let us say on a nomination by the President which was approved by the House.

SOMEHOW or other we must find ways to recognize distinction, to use experience and not to discard it. Until we find ways to do that we shall not only waste good public servants, when they are most fit to serve, but we shall never recruit great talents that are so desperately needed. For the younger men of great talent, seeing what happens to men who take high office, shrink from a Government which will so ruthlessly retire them in mid-career—will retire them just when they are prepared to do their best, just when it is too late for them to make a new and different career for themselves.

Rule Vote Called Unlikely

year's drive for House passage of a home rule bill, only to see it set aside as unfinished business after two days of debate.

Representative Jones said that while not committed to the new bill, he feels the home rule issue is of such importance to Washington that it should be presented to the House for decision.

Harris Questions Bill

Harris, who helped lead the fight against last year's bill, questions the new bill on Constitutional grounds. He said he would talk with the subcommittee about the Senate measure, probably next week. Abernethy said he would be against the bill. Teague said he would probably be against it. O'Hara said he was ready to study the new bill with an open mind, although he opposed last year's bill.

Referring the Senate bill to the Harris subcommittee is the next probable step in handling it.

District Committee Chairman McMillan (D., S. C.) a leader last year in opposing home rule, said there would be hearings on the Senate-passed home rule bill and on other home rule bills that have been introduced by House members.

McMillan said the District Committee would make no effort to dodge the home rule issue. He said he would present several amendments to the bill when it reaches that stage.

He said he felt bills before the Harris subcommittee to increase the number of judges in local courts here and increase their pay should have priority over home rule.

Besides Auchincloss, Allen and Jones, the following District members voiced sympathy, in varying degrees, with the purposes of the Senate home rule bill:

Representatives Kennedy (D., Mass.), G. Klein (D., N. Y.), Granger (D., Utah), Miller (D., Calif.), Buchanan (D., Pa.), Redden (D., N. C.), Bates (R., Mass.), Beall (R., Md.), Talle (R., Iowa), Miller (R., Nebr.), James (R., Pa.), and Wadsworth (R., N. Y.).

Others who indicated probable opposition to the bill included Representatives Davis (D., Ga.) and Jones (D., Mo.). Present committee members who opposed last year's home rule bill include Representatives Simpson (R., Ill.), and Morrison (D., La.).

Amendment May Be Offered

Representative Miller said he may propose an amendment to the Senate bill so that the two appointed members of the proposed city council—the other nine would be elected—would have nonvoting seats in Congress. He suggested they might serve as cochairmen, with or without votes, of a joint Congressional District Committee.

House Majority Leader McCormack (R., Mass.) commented that he has always favored home rule for Washington, but it would be up to District Chairman McMillan to say whether the bill might reach the floor this session.

Oil Firm Head Explains Lack of Equity Capital

Chicago, June 1 (AP).—Reasons for a shortage of equity capital were summarized in two sentences today by Robert Wilson, chairman of the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana). They were:

1. Those who know the facts about common stocks don't have the money.

2. Those who have the money don't know the facts.

Because of this, Wilson said at a luncheon address before the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry, "There isn't enough equity capital to meet the country's needs."

("Equity capital" is a financial term meaning money invested in stocks, particularly common stocks.)

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Politics And The Atom

SO THICK is the political fog that even a thorough and honest investigation may not bring out sufficient facts to enable the public to form any opinion about the status of the atomic energy project. In the gathering murk mysterious figures move on mysterious errands and the net result is to step up the atomic jitters that increasingly afflict the Nation. The Senators attacking Chairman David Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission seem to have been caught off base.

Childs

They apparently feel compelled to back up the sweeping charges made by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper of Iowa. And to do that they must concentrate not on the broad performance record of the AEC but on certain incidents which had already been "leaked" to a section of press and radio deeply hostile to the commission chairman.

Congressional jealousies and suspicions have a lot to do with the controversy—more than the public has yet been told. Those jealousies and suspicions should be brought into the open.

When Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut took command of the Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, after the Democratic victory of last November, he made certain changes. One of his first acts was to replace Fred B. Rhodes, jr., technical director of the committee under the Republicans, and Rhodes' assistant, David S. Teeple. Both Rhodes and Teeple had been with Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves in the Manhattan project from the beginning of the wartime effort to split the atom.

IN RHODES' place McMahon appointed William L. Borden, a World War II flyer, veteran of 30 missions over Europe and five times decorated. Borden, top man in his Yale Law School class, immediately after the war wrote a book on atomic energy, called There Will Be No Time. This profoundly impressed McMahon and led to the appointment.

Some Senators remained strong advocates of Rhodes, who is now with the Central Intelligence Agency, and Teeple, now with United States Air Force Intelligence. Close contact was maintained between the former committee experts and their Senate partisans who believe that the dismissal of Rhodes and Teeple endangered atomic security.

So close is this contact that Democratic members of the committee see in it an important phase of what they consider a deliberate plot to discredit Lilienthal. They trace the "leaks" to this source and, if they have their way, Rhodes and Teeple will be called to testify in the investigation.

The anti-Lilienthal suspicion is reflected in an article in the current issue of Nation's Business, published by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The author of the piece—called "Is the A-Bomb Secure?"—is William Bradford Huie, who in the Reader's Digest has made himself the most articulate and extreme advocate of air power as opposed to sea power.

Huie says:

"When, as the result of the Democratic victory in 1948, Senator McMahon replaced Senator Hickenlooper as chairman of the congressional committee, Senator McMahon's first action was to displace the committee's two veteran intelligence agents, thus abolishing the check-and-balance function of the congressional committee. For without its own machinery for checking and investigating, the committee can't be a watchdog; it can only consider the reports given it by the commission."

The article says that for two years Lilienthal and "the military" have argued over custody of atomic bombs. The intimation is that Lilienthal has blocked the training of "adequate" Air Force personnel to assemble and detonate the bomb.

On the other side of the fence Lilienthal's congressional friends consider the current attack as an effort really to restore control over the entire atomic energy project to the military establishment. Hickenlooper has denied that this is his intention.

But Senator Harry Cain of Washington, who often embarrasses his Republican colleagues by calling a spade a spade, promptly put in a bill to take control of atomic energy from civilians and give it back to men in uniform. There can be no doubt that Cain's frank gesture expresses the goal of some of Lilienthal's attackers.

"Secrecy is not security," said Hanson W. Baldwin, military correspondent of the New York Times in a searching article on the Lilienthal controversy, "nor is the bomb an impregnable rampart. Security is things and people, and bombs, weapons and research and bases, intangibles as well as tangibles. Security, above all, is spirit and morale and progressive, advanced and imaginative thinking, and secrecy is the enemy of these."

An honest investigation would help to cure the atomic jitters and break through the shroud of mystery and melodrama. But no one at this writing can be very hopeful that it will do that.

Disconsolate Washington Man, 65, Plunges To Death Under New York Subway Train

An elderly Washington man, upset by his own failing health and by his daughter's recent injuries in an auto accident, plunged to his death yesterday under the wheels of a New York subway train.

Papers in his clothes identified the man as Laurence Mulvaney, about 65, retired bookkeeper, of 48 Girard st. ne.

A folded clip of paper bore the scribbled notation—"Ethel Olson, 126 Beach Haven, N. J., Beach Haven 3-8075." On the other side was written "Please send her a letter explaining, which she will receive tomorrow, Thursday."

George W. Hart, motorman of the train, hold police he saw the man plunge to the tracks from the south end of the platform in the 34th st. station. Hart said he was unable to stop the train until four cars had rolled over the body.

Mrs. Robert Buard, at whose home Mulvaney lived, said he had been under a doctor's care and disturbed about his health.

"He's been particularly upset since one of his daughters in New York was struck by an automobile in saving her 6-year-old son from an oncoming car," she said. The daughter suffered a broken leg.

Mulvaney left Washington to visit his daughter in New York Tuesday, Mrs. Buard said. Mulvaney, a former associate of Mrs. Buard's husband, had lived in their home three years, she said.

The note was apparently addressed to another daughter.

Berles to Remarry

New York, June 1 (AP).—Milton Berle, Broadway and television star, will be remarried to his former wife, Joyce Matthews, actress, June 16. They were divorced in 1947.

This Was May . . .

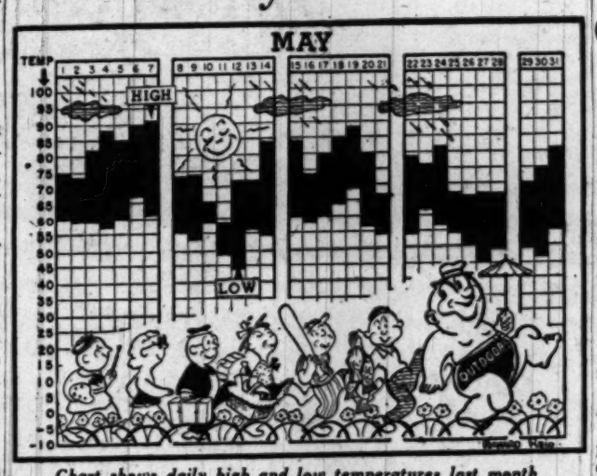

Chart shows daily high and low temperatures last month

When Robert Browning was talking about "May's warm slow yellow moonlit summer nights," he certainly didn't have Washington's May in mind.

Certainly not May, 1949, which was punctuated by precipitation and hot and cold flashes.

There was, for instance, the 43-degree low on May 12—and the 91 that enveloped these parts on May 7.

The month was no record-breaker, by Weather Bureau standards. Notable was the 6.33 inches of rainfall, which was 2.63 more inches than normal. Average temperature for the month was 66 degrees, as compared with a norm of 63.7 degrees.

Nearest May came to breaking any records was on May 6, when a high of 90 was only one degree short of the 1918 and 1934 record.

U. S. Employe Found Dead; Shot 3 Times

A 26-year-old Interior Department employe was found dead in his room at 700 Randolph st. nw., yesterday afternoon, with three bullet holes in his chest and a .25 automatic lying at his feet.

Police said George Tom Lindley had been dead for 24 hours. Two occupants of the rooming house where Lindley lived said they had heard three sharp reports Tuesday afternoon.

Police said Lindley had threatened to kill himself on Decoration Day after visiting a friend. further, police said Lindley's sister, Mrs. Charles F. King, lives at 829 Quincy st. nw.

Lindley was pronounced dead by Dr. T. P. Fogerty of Gallinger Hospital. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night issued a verdict of suicide.

Lindley's body, which weighed only 105 pounds, was found by a housekeeper, Rose Thomas, at 4 p. m. He was sitting in a chair in a sparsely furnished second floor room, clad only in his trousers. No note was found, police said. He had been living at the Randolph st. address for only one month, and was described as a "perfect tenant" by the landlord, Allen W. Kelley.

An empty United States Geological Survey pay envelope with "$71.10" typewritten on the outside, a girl's picture, the pistol and three brown paper bags full of clothes, the entire contents of the room, were removed by police.

Kelley said he thought the reports came from a backfiring car. Another roomer, Ernest G. McDuffee, 27, heard the reports while in a shower down the hall. He thought the noise came from a cap pistol.

3-Lane Roads Called Menace

By the United Press

President Truman's Highway Safety Conference heard yesterday that three-lane highways, ticket "fixing" and lack of uniform traffic laws contribute to the Nation's traffic death tolls.

Those were among the findings several committees reported to the three-day conference which is trying to cut highway accidents through education and cooperation.

Committee reports found that:

Three-lane highways are more dangerous than either two-lane or four-lane undivided roads and the four-lane divided highways are the safest.

Law enforcement often is hampered by "political pressure" on city officials, judges or policemen to "fix" traffic tickets although "violations are equally hazardous, regardless of who commits them."

Uniformity of traffic laws among different States and different cities within a State is an "urgent necessity."

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, Federal Works Administrator and general chairman of the conference, told the delegates their work in the past two years has helped to cut the national highway accident death rate 33 per cent.

Their goal is to cut in half the accident death rate for 1946 which averaged 12 for every billion miles of highway travel. The toll last year was 8.1 for each one billion miles.

The conference winds up today with five state Governors leading regional discussions and a general session at which President Truman will talk.

The final session also will have before it a broad plan of action for next year which stresses coordination of effort among Federal, State and local governments, particularly on uniform traffic laws and programs of driver education.

40 Urged for Bentley Job

Names of about 40 persons, about half of the them women, have been suggested by members of the District Bar Association as candidates for the new Juvenile Court judgeship.

Godfrey Munter, secretary of the Bar Association's Committee on Juvenile Selection, in giving the figure, said his committee will select three of the candidates for recommendation to Attorney General Clark this week.

The new judge is to be selected by the President on advice of the Attorney General. The last court vacancy here—a Municipal Court judgeship—was filled before the Bar Association could get its recommendation to Clark, which considerably miffed the District bar group.

This time that is impossible since the new judgeship has yet to be approved by Congress.

A bill to set up a temporary second judgeship on the juvenile bench has passed the Senate and been approved by a House subcommittee. It may come up on the House floor at the next District day, June 15.

This bill would allow Judge Fay Bentley to continue as judge during her current term which ends in 1952. Now a voluntary patient in St. Elizabeths Hospital, she is not expected to return to her job.

Another bill, proposed by the Bar Association, would create a second permanent Juvenile Court judgeship. The bill is now being considered by the Senate District Committee and may come up for a vote in the full committee June 9.

New Pension Idea Assailed by Murphy

Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday assailed the Commissioners' proposal to pay widows of firemen and policemen killed in line of duty more than those widowed by natural death.

At a hearing before a House District subcommittee, Murphy clashed with Police Department officials who indorsed the double standard of payment "to expedite the legislation the Commissioners had agreed to."

The subcommittee, headed by Representative James C. Davis (D., Ga.), is hearing a bill to increase pensions of widows of policemen and firemen from the present $60 a month to $125.

Will Continue Today

The hearing will continue today, beginning at 10 a. m.

The city heads have proposed that widows whose husbands were killed in line of duty receive $125 and those whose husbands died of natural death be given $100 monthly.

Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West said paying all widows $125 would cost the District an additional $150,000 annually.

Committee member Glenn Beall (R., Md.) recalled to Murphy that the same disagreement between the police and fire departments had delayed passage of this pension bill last year. "Don't you think it might speed things up if you went along with the Commissioners' plan?" he said.

Murphy replied: "It is my understanding that you gentlemen in Congress pass the laws, and I don't believe in compromising on such an issue when it involves a mere $25 a month."

Heart Disease Rate Cited

The fire chief cited the high heart disease rate among firemen and the hardships of their work.

West said the present pension plan costs the District $401,400 a year, while the city heads' new plan is estimated to cost $840,600. But the outlay will be offset by about $142,000 with a police and firemen's contribution increase of 1½ per cent, West explained.

Inspector C. A. Lutz, representing Police Superintendent Barrett, said he favored a flat $125 payment but that the department "has no objection" to the Commissioners' compromise if 't meant expediting the measure.

The bill will affect 342 widows of policemen and 203 firemen's widows. The measure also increases pension payments for children from the present $10 to $25 a month.

About 30 wives of deceased policemen and firemen crowded the hearing room. Many of them are scheduled to testify today.

Democrat Enters Board Race

The Arlington County board race took on a new life yesterday as the board's Democratic chairman declared for the one vacant seat and a political independent announced his probable candidacy.

Board Chairman Basil M. DeLashmutt, the only Democrat to file thus far, paid his filing fee to enter the Democratic August 2 primary.

The independent announcing probable candidacy was Robert W. Cox, 34, budget officer for the Federal Communications Commission, who said he "probably" will seek nomination of a "Town Meeting" of political independents to be held June 15. The "Town Meeting" will be held at Thomas Jefferson Junior High School, 816 S. Fillmore st., Arlington.

Arlington representatives in the Virginia House of Delegates, J. Maynard Magruder and George Damm, also yesterday announced they will seek renomination in the Democratic primary, as did Delegate Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

Tax Warrants Go Out Today

Falls Church Treasurer James E. Ferguson today is scheduled to issue the first batch of warrants against an estimated 200 city residents who haven't paid their personal property taxes.

Ferguson said yesterday the first installment in the city's first roundup of delinquent taxpayers would name 25 persons.

As for the remainder, he said, "We'll just keep on issuing warrants until all the delinquent taxes are in."

The first group will be summoned to face Falls Church Municipal Court next Tuesday. They face possible attachment of their property if they fail to pay up then, Ferguson said.

According to Ferguson there are 750 tax delinquents on the books owing nearly $10,000. But he said that only about 200 still are living in Falls Church.

Truman Will Give 'Major' Speech in Arkansas June 11

The White House yesterday said President Truman wil make an important speech at Little Rock, Ark., June 11 during the annual reunion of the 35th Division.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Mr. Truman will speak in the stadium there at 4:30 p. m. (EDT) at the dedication of a war memorial.

The President will leave Washington on his personal plane, the Independence, at 1:30 p. m. June 10 and arrive at Little Rock at 5 p. m. He will attend the reunion ball that night.

Ross said the subject of the President's speech has not been determined, but he should be inclined to call it a "major" speech.

The President will leave Little Rock for the return trip to Washington at 5:30 p. m. (EDT), June 11, an hour after he starts his speech.

Ross said there was no prospect of the President flying to Des Moines, Iowa, to attend a meeting of Democratic farm leaders June 12.

2 New Branch Banks to Open Here Monday

By S. Oliver Goodman

Details of two new Washington branch banks, both to open on Monday, were revealed yesterday by the American Security & Trust Co. and the Bank of Commerce & Savings.

A. S. & T.'s new Woodley Park office at Calvert st. and Connecticut ave. will be managed by Kenneth Birgfeld, an assistant vice president, according to President Daniel W. Bell.

Bank of Commerce's Brightwood Branch at Georgia ave. and Tewkesbury st. will be managed by Francis E. Robey, a vice president, according to President Thomas J. Groom.

The Woodley Park office, new from the ground up, is air-conditioned throughout. It offers complete banking services, including safe deposit facilities, a special drive-in window for motorists and a night depository.

Modern features include open tellers' windows, fluorescent lighting and a casual corner with easy chairs for customers. On the second floor is a kitchen and adjacent dining room for employes. Also, there is a tiled sun terrace with beach chairs and umbrellas for lunch-hour relaxation of workers.

The Brightwood Branch replaces adjoining temporary quarters occupied since July, 1946. The new one-story structure contains a large glass area in the front, framed to light the public, officers and tellers space.

The entire building is air-conditioned. In the interior, major emphasis has been placed on simplicity, efficiency and color. Inside the main entrance, there is space specifically designed for the comfort of women customers. In the rear is an auto parking area and a special entrance for motorists.

SEC Loses Round In Fight With Otis

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals held yesterday there is not enough evidence so far to support Securities and Exchange Commission charges of a frame-up by Otis & Co. to get out of a stock-selling contract with the Kaiser-Frazer Corp.

Unless new evidence of collusion with James Masterson, Philadelphia lawyer, is produced, the court ruled, SEC cannot proceed further on that ground in its move to take away the broker-dealer registration of the Cleveland investment firm. Loss of registration would put Otis out of business.

Cyrus S. Eaton, largest stockholder in Otis & Co., issued a one-sentence statement in Cleveland commenting on the decision. It read:

"It is naturally gratifying to have another demonstration that under our system of government a citizen can obtain redress even as against an agency of the government."

Directly at issue in the action is a suit filed by Masterson against Kaiser-Frazer, which Otis used as the ground for withdrawal from the financing contract with Kaiser-Frazer.

That SEC proceeding, and numerous other legal actions, grew out of the collapse of a 10-million-dollar stock issue by Kaiser-Frazer. Otis & Co., was one of the underwriters. The contract for handling the issue included a clause permitting the underwriters to back out if there was pending at the time of the stick issue any important suit affecting Kaiser-Frazer.

Masterson sued as a stockholder for an injunction against the stock issue, and Otis withdrew from the deal just before the stock was to have been offered to the public in February, 1948.

Among other pending actions are suits and countersuits between the motor manufacturer and the investment firm involving damage claims of at least 30 million dollars.

The Court of Appeals said that unless new evidence of collusion is produced by SEC, an injunction will be issued to stop the commission from going on with any action against Otis based on that charge.

But SEC can proceed on grounds other than the collusion charge if it finds such grounds, the appellate court said.

Adm. Stone Gets New Medical Post

By the United Press

Rear Admiral Leslie O. Stone, commander of the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital, will become District medical officer of the First Naval District, Boston, about June 15, the Navy announced yesterday.

It said he was being transferred because the post as commandant of the hospital calls for the rank of captain.

The Navy said the transfer had nothing to do with the suicide of former Defense Secretary Forrestal, who leaped from the sixteenth floor of the hospital.

Stone, who was made rear admiral on May 1, has commanded the hospital since September, 1946. He will be succeeded by Capt. Frederick C. Greaves, staff medical officer of the commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet.

McGrath Assails Fund-Matching Proposal for Sesqui

Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) last night denounced the move to appropriate Federal funds for the sesquicentennial celebration only on a matching basis with privately raised money.

The Senate Appropriations Committee took the surprise action Tuesday after McGrath and members of the sesquicentennial commission had urged a three-million-dollar advance on the theory that all of it and perhaps more, would be repaid to the Treasury.

Instead, the committee, in reporting out the Second Deficiency bill, set a top ceiling of $1,500,000 but made it contingent upon a like amount being raised locally.

McGrath said he would talk to several committee members on the matter.

"It is neither fair nor possible for local interests to raise $1,500,000," said the Senate District Committee chairman.

"If Congress was willing to give over $3,000,000 for the New York World's Fair, I should think it could go along with the Freedom Fair," McGrath added.

"If the Senate doesn't change its mind, we might just as well forget the whole thing," he said.

Presbyterians 'Accept Basic Rights' for All

Montreat, N. C., June 1 (AP).—The legislative body of Southern Presbyterians today "accepted" a report contending that good Christians should protect the "basic rights" of all men, white and Negro.

Shortly thereafter the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. shut up shop and went home.

The final day of the assembly saw the lawmaking body:

Avoid a straightforward stand on the subject of divorced persons remarrying in the church.

Water-down blunt opposition to euthanasia, or mercy killings.

Urge full collaboration "with every local movement to secure weekday religious instruction of our children and youth in cooperation with our public schools, provided local school boards do not object."

The assembly's action in "accepting" the report on "State's rights and human rights" did not mean indorsement one way or another. It meant simply that the assembly commended the report to the various churches for "consideration and study."

The report argued that

"The South can justify its claim to States' right only if it uses those rights, not as a device for dodging its democratic duty, but as a means for guaranteeing more effectively the rights and liberties of all its citizens . . ."

Methodists To Hold 165th Meeting Today

Westminster, Md., June 1 (Spl.). The 165th session of the Baltimore annual Conference of the Methodist Church will convene at Western Maryland College Thursday.

The session is scheduled to last four days, with an extra meeting Monday morning if necessary. More than 600 clergy and lay delegates from the District, the Western Shore of Maryland and part of West Virginia are expected to be present for the conference.

Opening day speakers will be Dr. W. A. Smart of the Candler School of Theology, Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., and Bishop Carleton Lacy of China.

During the meetings reports of boards and commissions on education, child care, temperance, world peace, world service and finance, evangelism, and social projects will be presented to the delegates for approval.

At the final session new appointments for the coming year will be announced by Bishop Flint. Changes in pastorates at several Washington churches are expected.

'Free Europe' Unit Formed

New York, June 1 (AP).—Formation of a National Committee for Free Europe, Inc., designed to help political leaders who have escaped to the United States from Iron Curtain countries, was announced today.

Joseph C. Grew, former Undersecretary of State, who made the announcement, said the group was privately financed.

Grew said that "in addition to maintaining the American tradition of hospitality to political refugees, we will aid these leaders to continue their stand against communism, anticipating the day when the Iron Curtain will fall and eastern Europe will be ripe for democratic remaking."

The committee will seek to maintain the leaders from abroad "in useful occupations during their enforced stay in the United States," Grew said.

The group also will engage "in efforts by radio, press and other means to keep alive in their fellow-citizens in Europe the ideas of individual and national freedom, and to establish effective means of cooperation with like-minded European leaders in the United States and to coordinate their plans with those of similar leaders abroad."

The sponsors include Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower; A. A. Berle, jr., former Assistant Secretary of State; James B. Carey, secretary of the CIO; William Green, president of the AFL, and James A. Farley, former Postmaster General.

South Sea Island Headhunter's Son Here Seeking Truman

A man came to town yesterday who wants to see the "big parliament," the "Number 1 Kiap" and the "big house belong Kiap."

Salau is a 40-odd-year-old native preacher of the Solomon Islands, son of a converted headhunter. During World War II, Salau was instrumental in the rescue of about 500 Allied servicemen in the New Britain Island.

Salau is in the States to renew acquaintance with the Americans he knew in the Islands, and to meet, he hopes, the "Number 1 Kiap"—President Truman.

"Kiap" is pidgin English for "cap". It translates "Kiap," any American soldier, sailor or Marine, and No. 1 Kiap, the chief of them all.

Before he sailed into New York last May 24, accompanied by Seventh-Day Adventist Pastor and Mrs. A. G. Stewart, Salau had taught islanders in an Adventist Mission for about 20 years. He learned pidgin English in a mission when he was—he thinks—about 10 or 12 years old. He does not know his exact age.

Salau's initial reaction to New York:

"Me look in all big house. All big same mountain. Time me look up neck belong me he pain."

When interviewed yesterday at Union Station, Salau hadn't had time to react to Washington. He was met by a party headed by Elder J. L. McElhany, world president of the General Conference, Seventh-Day Adventists.

Also on hand to greet him was Capt. Gordon Manuel, formerly of the Air Force, who was rescued by friendly natives of New Britain after his ship was shot down over Rabaul. Captain Manuel will accompany Salau on a circular swing around the country which will include stops in Kansas and Massachusetts.

Salau will be here through Saturday, when he has four speaking engagements, at 9 and 11 a. m. at the Park Church in Takoma, at 4 p. m. at the Sligo Church in Takoma, and at 9:30 p. m. over a WOL radio program. He appears here under the auspices of the Seventh-Day Adventists.

One on the Aisle—

Just a Sentence About the Olney

By Richard L. Coe

NOW WHAT CAN YOU say, I ask you, about Tallulah in "Private Lives" out at Olney because everybody knows about Tallulah in "Privates Lives" and how she plays on that voice of hers the way Toscanini does the NBC Symphony except maybe she's improved its range over the years and now she uses an upper register once in a while as well as that 32-foot bombard that shatters into a laugh which splits the skies at Oxon Hill, wherever that is, though I must say Noel Coward should be grateful to her for squeezing more royalties out of a play he finished in Shanghai 19 years ago come Michaelmas and it's a play some of whose lines he's repeated in later comedies but the way Tallulah and Don Cook deliver them you'd think that they were plucked out of thin air and speaking of thin it's really wonderful how Tallulah's legs DO maintain their provocative lines even though all of us aren't doing too well around the middle, but I must say Tallulah's face is something we should all learn the secret of, no telltale lines or tattletale gray for all the emotion she pours into that face every waking moment, I mean most of us would be dead right now if we'd played Amanda the way Tallulah's been playing Amanda for two seasons and we wouldn't look very reposed either, though reposed is hardly the word for the antic doings that are opening Olney's most promising summer season because most of the time people are laughing madly except, of course, some people don't laugh madly, they laugh heartily, which is a more normal thing and much to be commended, because when normal people laugh at Coward's witty, sensual and self-centered characters they're letting off the steam that otherwise might make them equally like Coward's boa constrictors, so you see in a way, ha-ha, he has contributed to the general moral good which is something you might never think of and I'm sure, too, the girls must have been taking in Tallulah's clothes designed by the WAVES' Mainbocher, one item of which is an eye-shattering red pajama that I'll bet nobody could sleep in, but then you hardly need to sleep IN anything on the French Riviera where the comedy begins, yes, it's back in the Riviera, "Private Lives," which makes you realize the war is over because during the war whenever you saw "Private Lives" the setting was usually Mexico, which made you forget the war to which there is no allusion, praise be, though to tease you into thinking the play was written last week there are minute references to television and the atom which goes to show you how easy it is to have social significance because who can escape these things and what will they ultimately do to bright individualists like Amanda and Elyot, but as I was saying, isn't it grand that Tallulah and all her 45th st. playmates have come down to make the Olney opening so very special because I don't know, except for Redge Allen, where you could find another Elyot as adept as Cook, how do you suppose he ever developed that peculiar voice of his, and Barbara Baxley is a very pretty fluff for Elyot to have married and even if William Langford isn't much of an actor in the part Laurence Olivier played with Coward and G. Lawrence all those years ago I assume he has talents of which I know nothing and Therese Quadri is a lamb as the French maid which is quite a triumph for she created that French maid in the original cast and probably knows more about "Private Lives" than anybody on earth, still when you come to talking about Tallulah in "Private Lives" what, I ask you, is there left to say?

"PRIVATE LIVES." Evelyn Freyman and Richard Skinner, in association with John C. Wilson, present the comedy by Noel Coward, with settings by S. Syrjala. Staged by Martin Manulis. As performed on Broadway and on tour by Miss Bankhead with this cast. Opening attraction of the Olney summer theater, to run through Sunday, June 12.

Rough Stuff

'The Crooked Way' Leads Nowhere

IF THERE ARE any virtues in Keith's "Crooked Way," they are not apparent to these dewy eyes.

The story is abysmal nonsense, the violence cheap and the acting nonexistent.

You are asked to believe that a war hero who developed amnesia has gone back to his enlistment city to find out what sort of a chap he used to be. He turns out to have been a real thug, quite the reverse of the noble guy he's been since that shrapnel got into his pate.

As these things do, the tangle works out into a satisfactory moral conclusion, but not until those boring, unsavory characters movies like this find so fascinating have done each other in with kicks in the stomach, gun duels and more [illegible] in the stomach.

The amnesia angle isn't in the least convincing because there were all sorts of ways for the victim to find out about himself other than through the pointless violence he endured. Army, police and FBI would not have behaved as they did.

To make matters worse, that mysterious actor John Payne has the leading role, a performer whose talent lies in puckering his lower lip into quivering nothingness. Sonny Tufts is the chief thug, an utter bore, and Ellen Drew looks absolutely terrible as the heroine. About none of them could you care less.—R. L. C.

"THE CROOKED WAY." United Artists release produced by Benedict Bogeaus. Screen play by Richard H. Landau from a radio play, "No Blade Too Sharp," by Robert Monroe. Photographed by John Alton. Music by Louis Forbes. At Keith's.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Lester Cowan, the film producer, is watching with more than academic interest the progress of the Walter Wanger production for Greta Garbo. Cowan's experience with Miss Garbo makes him skeptical that she'll ever do another picture . . . He had met her, told her a film story he though would be suitable for her, and Miss Garbo said she'd like to do it. Cowan therefore engaged a screenwriter, who wrote the complete screen play. Then the star visited the producer in his office and told him: "I've changed my mind." Cowan reminded her that he had spent almost $100,000 on the screenplay. "Nothing will make me reconsider," she insisted . . . "We'll see about that," said Cowan, lifted the phone and told his secretary: "Get me the King of Sweden."

A Broadway producer who was introduced to Miss Garbo in New York—where she uses the name "Harriet Brown"—negotiated for her appearance on the New York stage. He phoned her hotel and asked for "Miss Brown." The operator said: "Which Miss Brown?" and the producer told her: "Miss Garbo Brown." The producer was put through to Miss Garbo's apartment, and she agreed to see him to discuss the stage production . . . "Seeing an audience in front of me would upset me," Miss Garbo finally told him. "If I ever appear on the New York stage, the first 11 rows will have to be removed from the theater."

Last year Joe E. Lewis, the night-club comedian, paid Coleman Jacoby more than $1000 for three specialty songs about Lewis' romance with his wife, Martha Stewart. Miss Stewart later brought suit for divorce in California. Lewis telephoned Jacoby about changing some of the lyrics of the song, in view of his disrupted marriage. The ideas they discussed were fruitless . . . "It's no use," Lewis finally said. "I'm telephoning Martha immediately, to postpone the divorce until after my New York opening—so that I can get some use out of my thousand dollars worth of songs."

John Gunther saw some of the Matisses and Renoirs in the Beekman pl. home of Albert D. Lasker, and said: "I wish I could have a lot of money. Lots and lots of money. Maybe, from now on, I should think of nothing but accumulating money" . . . "A lot of money is fine," Lasker told him, "—that is, if you don't have to pay too much for it."

Revival of Man 'Dead' 5 Years Puts Him Back in Army

New York, June 1 (AP).—Anthony Martino, listed officially as dead or missing for five years and center of a two-family marital mixup, was back in the Army today.

The Army, after he had reported for a checkup of his nebulous status, announced he returned to its ranks "technically" May 6 when he first informed military authorities he was alive.

Martino, who had been given up for dead in action in France in 1944, said he had no desire to see his legal wife, Mrs. Mary Martino, 37, of Waterbury, Conn., but would like to see their two children.

In Waterbury, Mrs. Martino, who learned that her 40-year-old husband had a wartime mate and one child on Staten Island, announced she would seek a legal separation.

Martino was to undergo an Army physical and psychiatric examination.

First Homers by Dente, Yost Put Nats in 3d Place

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

STRIKE ME PINK, if that isn't Lloyd Paul Stryker defending Alger Hiss against the Government's charge of perjury in a New York court. There was something in the name that struck a familiar note and set me to jogging my memory, and then—Eureka! Sure, it was the same guy.

The same Attorney Stryker with the grand courtroom manner, who is back in his own league now, after once tilting unsuccessfully with the late Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball.

POVICH

It was back in December, 1943, that Bill Cox, owner of the Phillies, engaged Lawyer Stryker to defend him against charges of betting on ball games. At that point, Cox had already been tossed out of baseball by Landis, but with Stryker as his mouthpiece was demanding an open hearing.

Judge Landis granted it, and set up court in a suite in the Roosevelt Hotel, first time the baseball-writing press was ever admitted to one of Landis' hearings. Counsel Stryker, with his client and witnesses on the stand, put the proceedings on a formal courtroom basis, as Landis writhed a bit.

FOR SIX HOURS, Landis listened to Cox, Attorney Stryker and defense witnesses without objection. With what he had to work with, Mr. Stryker was apparently making out a brilliant defense for his client, and was gracious to the extreme in his approach to Landis.

"It pleases me that this hearing is being held before a jurist of your eminence and reputation," said Counsel Stryker, "and I know we will get a fair hearing." Whereupon, the crusty old judge cut him off with:

"Save your energy."

Stryker summed up Cox's case, finally, and then intimated to Landis that he could introduce more evidence, adding "but that would be bad for baseball."

With that last statement, Stryker was misjudging his man. "Bad for baseball, huh?" Landis exploded. "Then by all means, let's hear it."

Stryker, taken aback, went on with his case. But it was no dice. Landis heard him out and refused to rescind his lifetime ban on Cox, with the decision: "The order will have to be that I do not put out a new order."

FILM STAR Kirk Douglas is a wonderfully believable middleweight champion of the world in "Champion," the Hollywood product based on Ring Lardner's famed story of the same name. And in refreshing contrast to the Robert Taylors, John Garfields et al., who have essayed prize fight roles before him.

The difference is that Douglas can fight at least a little bit, knows how to move in the ring, and in fact gives the impression that he could fight a whole lot, and with style, if pressed. In his case, it is not quite an accident, either. He used to wrestle in college, is no stranger to ring togs, and with such previous prize-ring fluffs of other actors in mind, he trained six months for the role.

The technical director of the picture is "Mushy" Callahan, the old junior welterweight champ who hung 'em up in 1930, and apparently took Douglas nicely in hand.

IT'S HOLLYWOOD'S best fight movie, and they did it up smartly, even to the rope-skipping and bag-punching scenes in the gym where Douglas neatly picked up the routines of the champions. And for the first time, a Hollywood fight picture produced a fight manager who doesn't talk out of the side of his mouth.

It was a two-way gamble, I understand, with the producers giving Douglas his first shot at a featured role, and Douglas gambling on himself to the extent that he took little pay, except in the form of royalties. His percentage of the receipts will make him one of the big earners of the year in Hollywood.

Browns Lose 6 in Row to Griffs, 6-5

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

St. Louis, June 1.—Picking up where they left off when last in these parts, the Nats conked the Browns tonight, 6-5, and paraded into undisputed possession of third place.

The Nats' sixth straight victory over the tailenders, who have now dropped seven in a row, wasn't decided until the final second of the 2-hour and 18-minute struggle when Relief Pitcher Sid Hudson induced home-run hitter Jack Graham to ground out with the tying run on second base.

Two more Nats joined the Washington home run club—Sam Dente and Eddie Yost, each whacking out his first of the season to bring the club's total to 31 in the first six weeks of the campaign. It took the Griffiths the entire season to hit that many last year.

Browns Nearly Tie

Dente's two-run poke, highlight of Washington's 5-run sortie in the fifth inning, and Yost's almost went for naught when the Browns struck up a rally in the ninth which came within inches of tying the score.

Sherry Robertson misplayed Bob Dillinger's drive to right into a double to launch the almost unhappy inning. Stan Spence, who had tagged Hudson for his fourth homer in the seventh, whipped out a single to right field and Dillinger tried to go all the way on it and would have, had it not been for Eddie Robinson.

Robertson's throw to the plate got by Al Evans, but Robinson barced into the plate, took Evans' accurate relay and tagged the sliding Dillinger 6 inches from home to keep the Brownies in their place, eighth.

The fifth-inning assault against former Yankee Red Embree and former Nat Tom Ferrick enabled little Mickey Haefner to pocket his fifth success of the young year, although the mitey knuckleballer wasn't around at the finish.

Haefner was relieved of his responsibilities in the sixth inning when the Missourians checked in with their fourth run to trail by only 5-4, threatening to do more damage.

Held to two hits for four innings by Embree, the Nats didn't daley in the fifth. They came out swinging and Embree went out.

Al Kozar started the rumpus with a single and Dente followed with a two-run stroke into the left field bleachers. Evans doubled and scooted to third as Haefner beat out a sacrifice.

3261 Fans on Hand

This not only put the Nats in a good position, but it also put Embree out of the ball game and brought in Ferrick. Eddie Yost forced Haefner at second, scoring Evans.

Robertson parked a sharp double down the left field line and when Johnny Sullivan, who was doing the same thing for Washington last year, threw wildly to the plate trying to get Yost, Robertson continued his junket around the bases for the fifth run of the highly pleasing inning.

Yost led off the seventh with a homer into the left center stands, 379 feet away from where he hit the ball.

Graham's single, Rookie Roy Sievers' double, an infield out and a fly to Vollmer made it 2-0, St. Louis, in the second inning and brought a little hope to the 3261 fans that at long last the Browns might win one.

The cozy little crowd was further cheered in the fourth when Haefner's wildness enabled the Brownies to up their margin to 3-0.

He hit Graham, pitched a single to Dick Kokos and walked Sherm Lollar to load the bases. He then walked Sullivan, slugging with a .214 average, to force in a run.

This same Sullivan drove in the Browns' fourth run with a single and drove Haefner out of the ball game in the 6th inning.

IN SHORT—The loss was Embree's 7th of the year. He's won only one . . . Kozar saved Haefner from at least one run and probably two when he knocked down Embree's sure "single" to right and threw him out to retire the side in the fourth . . . Kozar's play came with the bases loaded . . . Dizzy Dean dropped by the press box to announce his departure for Washington Friday and the Celebrities Tournament . . . Al Evans pulled a mean trick on Gerry Priddy, his former room mate. Evans caught Priddy napping off first and picked him off rather neatly . . .

Bosox Squeeze 3-1 Victory From Feller, Faltering Tribe

Cleveland, June 1 (AP).—Mickey Harris of the Boston Red Sox pitched himself in and out of trouble tonight and finally beat the Cleveland Indians and Bob Feller, 3 to 1.

Boston scored two of its runs on a couple of infield bounders, a walk and an error in the second inning. It was Feller's first start in two weeks and his fourth defeat against one win for the season.

Zernial Suffers Pinched Muscle

Chicago, June 1 (AP).—Injured Outfielder Gus Zernial of the Chicago White Sox, whose .355 tops American League hitters, may be benched as long as nine weeks.

At Mercy Hospital, Zernial had his right arm held in tension by a pulley and it was reported physicians will not be able to set his fractured collar-bone for a week. A muscle is pinched in the fracture caused when Zernial made a diving try for a catch against the Indians at Cleveland last Saturday.

Braves Whip Pirates, 8-6, Stretch Lead

Boston, June 1 (AP).—Boston's Braves held first place in the National League tonight by once again coming from behind and beating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 8-6, in a lengthy battle in which the teams used nine pitchers.

The Boston victory, before a 20,153 crowd, put the Tribe a full game ahead of the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants who are tied for second place in the tight National League race.

Eastern Meets Tech for Interhigh Title at Stadium Tonight

At Charles Town

Dear Folks: The $29.80 daily double on the Wednesday program was strictly a Charles Town community affair. Both winners are locally owned. Some persons got the impression from this column that the present meeting ends with today's card. The present session, however, is booked to close with the running of the June 11 program. The third and final meeting will open on June 27. Horsemen have asked the track to use some of the days between the two meetings. President A. J. Boyle will make a decision today. A swarm of bees was taken off a tree limb overhanging the back stretch but there has been no evidence that any horse has been stung. The bees were captured and will make honey this summer for John Briscoe the track superintendent. BILL

'No-Hit' Pope Again Hurls For Trainers

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The championship and the future of night interhigh baseball are at stake tonight when Eastern and McKinley Tech clash in Griffith Stadium at 8 o'clock.

Unbeaten in the double elimination playoffs, Eastern can win the title simply by defeating Tech tonight. The Trainers, however, have lost once in the titular round-robin, and are faced with beating Eastern tonight and again Saturday in order to claim the championship.

Rental Only $300

Tonight's game is the first Interhigh game ever to be played under the lights. The schools are being billed only $300 for lighting the park, and if they can draw as many as 300 adult spectators, at a dollar a head, night ball might become a fixture next year.

With a shortage of dependable pitchers, Tech Coach Woody Smitherman is starting Right-hander Jack Pope for the second time in three days. Only last Tuesday, the lanky side-arming curve-baller hurled the first no-hitter in interhigh playoff history as Tech eliminated Wilson in the semifinals, 5-0.

He'll have a formidable mound foe in Right-hander Eddie Kline, a short, well-built fast-baller, who smiles as he pitches, and who has pitched three victories this year. Kline is a low-hit artist, too, having turned in four one-hitters in the past two seasons at Eastern.

Tech Took Trouncing

Pope has won six and lost one this season, his only loss being a 7-4 licking against Kline. Tech also suffered a 17-2 beating at the hands of Eastern in a second-round playoff game a week ago.

The Trainer lineup is dotted with such illustrious baseball "names" as Werber, Speaker, Jackson and Jones, and all are better than .300 hitters. Billy Werber plays first. Skip Speaker catches. Jeff Jackson plays right field and B. I. Jones is the shortstop.

Every Eastern regular is batting .275 or over. Sparkplugs of the team are the brother combination of Ted Dyer, catcher and Franny Dyer, first base. Third Baseman Harry Kallas and Shortstop Dave Keys provide the Rambler infield with defensive class.

Commission Acts

Charles Town Stewards Upheld In Banning 10 on Dope Charge

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 1.—Action of the local stewards in suspending 10 trainers for alleged doping of horses here last month, has been upheld, for the most part, by the West Virginia Racing Commission in a report made public today on hearings held May 20 and 21.

The commission reinstated all horses involved, sustained six-month suspensions for eight trainers and upped two suspensions to a year. The additional penalties were imposed on Victor P. Noyes and Luther Wilson, and the report reads: "They having heretofore been found guilty of the violation of the West Virginia Racing Commission's corrupt practices rules, the commission imposes an additional penalty of six months."

Following the release of the report, James M. Mason 3d, local attorney representing the involved trainers, said he had been instructed to file a bill in United States District Court to enjoin the commission from the enforcement of its ruling. Mason said, "I am of the opinion that the commission's action is unwaranted and is clearly in violation of the constitution in adopting such a ruling."

In addition to Noyes and Wilson, those affected by the upholding of the suspensions are: James Stuart, C. W. Carnard, Elsie S. Morris, J. E. Allison, jr., King M. Boyd, Willie James Johnson, Frank Lewis, N. L. Brown.

The horses who will be eligible to run when either sold or assigned trainers acceptable to the stewards are Ranger Mosby, Running Riot, Sunset Boy, Love My Gal, Rolling Water, Cat Eyes, Windy Hills, Foolish Bid, King Brand and Air Defense.

Webb Bats, Hurls Giants To 11-5 Win

New York, June 1.—The New York Giants staged a seven-run outburst in the seventh to plaster the Chicago Cubs, 11-5, here today, giving Sam Webb of Washington, D. C., a richly-deserved first victory of the season.

Webb, 24-year-old McKinley Tech product, relieved Starter Andy Hansen in the second with the Cubs in command, 4-0. Sam pitched brilliantly the rest of the way, allowing only two hits and an unearned run in 7 1/3 innings.

Webb, who joined the Giants late last season and scored two wins, also took a prominent part in two New York rallies.

He singled twice in four trips, scored two runs and batted in another.

Gavilan, Ray Fight July 11

Philadelphia, June 1 (AP).—Welterweight Champion Ray (Sugar) Robinson and Kid Gavilan of Havana today signed for a 15-round title bout in Philadelphia Municipal Stadium July 11.

Robinson and Gavilan met last summer in a 10-round nontitle fight at New York. The champion won a close decision.

Since then Gavilan has beaten Lightweight Champion Ike Williams twice in overweight bouts.

Robinson made his last title defense against Bernard Docusen in Chicago last summer, winning a 15-round decision.

Robinson will receive 40 per cent of the net gate receipts, including television and radio, for the fight here. Gavilan will take 18½ per cent.

The fight will be under the promotion of the Philadelphia Arena, In New York, Harry Markson, boxing director of the New Garden Corp. which bought out Mike Jacobs, said he regarded the Philadelphia announcement as "just another contract Robinson is signing."

Markson hoped to sign Robinson and Gavilan for a June 17 date at the Polo Grounds, but the fighters balked when they reached the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission.

"We still have an exclusive contract on Robinson's services."

Trade Rumors Hurt Browns, Taylor Says

St. Louis, June 1 (AP).—Unfounded trade rumors have produced a severe case of nerves among St. Louis Browns players, Manager Zack Taylor said today.

Charley DeWitt, vice president of the club, joined Taylor in expressing indignation over stories published in several cities during the Browns' disastrous trip. The last-place club won only 2 of 13 contests on the tour.

Both Taylor and DeWitt expressed belief the rumors have contributed to the club's sorry showing. The Browns came home with only 10 victories to show for 40 games this season, and were 16½ lengths behind the front-running New York Yankees.

Despite reports to the contrary, the two Brownie officials insisted the club has no deals pending.

DeWitt added that Taylor is assured of continuing as manager for the remainder of the season.

"I think that's one of the main things wrong with our ball club. Our boys are jittery over the stories and reports they're going to be traded or sold for big sums of money and they don't know just who they'll be playing ball for by the time the trading season ends, June 15."

Taylor said one report circulating in Detroit Sunday had First Baseman Jack Graham and Second Baseman Gerry Priddy headed for the Tigers in a big trade.

"In Boston, the critics came into our clubhouse and asked me, in front of my players, to put a price on Pitcher Ned Garver so the Red Sox could buy him from us," Taylor continued.

DeWitt said a story in Boston said Taylor was to be fired and replaced by Priddy as manager.

For Striped Bass

Delaware Readies 12-Inch Fish Law

By Ralph Murdock

ONLY THE signature of Gov. Elbert N. Carvel of Delaware is now needed to make law the 12-inch length limit for striped bass. And since the Governor has expressed himself in favor of the bill, it is only a question of hours before the law will be in force.

Murdock

The State Senate has passed the bill which was previously okayed by the house in the General Assembly. The bill provides that no striped bass, which measures less than 12 inches from the tip of the snout to the fork of the tail, shall be kept or sold in the State of Delaware.

For many years, Delaware has been the dumping ground for undersized rockfish taken from neighboring States. Concerted action by organized sportsmen seems finally to have put through the bill to give added protection to the stripers.

Although the length limit is still low when compared to that of States farther north, passage of this legislation is a major stride forward. And it's another indication that more and more influence is being welded by fishermen along the Atlantic seaboard.

ED RACKEY and Charlie Renner made a trip to Oyster, Va., for channel bass. After going "hitless" against the big bronze gamesters for nine hours (not innings), they were rewarded for their perseverance. They averted a shutout by landing two red channel bass and one black drum in rapid succession. The trio of fish weighed 155 pounds.

HARD HEAD fishing in the upper Chesapeake reached a new low within the last week. We regret to state that less croakers were taken during that interval than when they first made their appearance three weeks ago in this area. The location of rockfish and large white perch in this spot offset the scarcity of croakers.

Incidentally, here are the three prize winners for turning in the largest hardhead at the Anacostia Sport Mart. The fish were judged by length only.

First prize: G. R. Clark, Bethesda, Md., 19 inches; second prize: Lee Harrow, 1819 Minnesota ave. ne., 18½ inches; third prize: Giles Marble, 2127 H st. nw., 18 inches.

All the winners caught their fish on the same day, May 8. They caught 11, 3 and 4 fish respectively. The prizes were $15, $10 and $5 in merchandise.

COLONEL SCOTT and wife, Bernard Draper and Mrs. Renner tried for the large rockfish at Eastern Bay. The fish were just "not in the mood." They were slightly rewarded with three large rocks that scaled 5, 7 and 10 pounds. They chummed with Capt. Doyle Kendall at the helm. The skipper remarked, "I have never seen so many boats chumming in one place. There must have been 75. At least 200 gallons of grass shrimp were tossed to the stripers."

LAST, BUT not least, here's a good report on hard heads that were taken in the lower Chesapeake Bay. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. George McCarty and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Trent. They fished in shallow water off Point No Point after sundown. The quartet boated 25 large croakers with a sprinkling of white perch and spot. Peeler crab was the tasty morsel offered for bait. Mrs. McCarty led the foursome in fish caught. (Men, we warn you, they'll do it every-time.)

Weekend Suggestions

ROCKFISH: Eastern Bay. The trollers beat the chummers last week at this spot. Chummers should reverse the decision. Bottom trolling suggested.

HARDHEADS: Well scattered but Point Lookout to Solomon's Island has more possibilities of larger catches. Late afternoon and evening fishing preferred.

WHITE PERCH: (large size): Holland Point Bar. Chumming will beat blood worms ten to one. Several large catches made last week. Arrange for boats early. Grass shrimp must be caught in advance.

SPOT AND PERCH: Junction of Wicomico and Potomac rivers. Worms best bait.

New Fringe Parking Plan Under Study

A new plan for fringe parking lots to accommodate all-day parkers, such as downtown workers, is being developed by the Motor Vehicle Parking Agency.

P. Y. K. Howat, agency head, said the closing of the city's largest downtown lot yesterday has spurred development of the program. The lot at 3d and C sts., John Marshall pl. and Pennsylvania ave. had a capacity of 1500 cars, and a patronage of from 600 to 700 cars.

Howat said he still considers fringe parking "the only way to solve the downtown parking problem," but he now is concentrating on providing space for District and Federal Government workers and shopping area employes, rather than shoppers.

The plan contemplates opening a network of lots in various parts of the city along traffic arteries which carry the heaviest influx of workers, then arranging for bus or streetcar transportation downtown.

A program tried earlier this year concentrated on attracting shoppers to two fringe lots linked to the commercial section by shuttle buses. This was ended March 20 for lack of adequate patronage.

Howat said after the lots are planned, private enterprise will be offered a chance to run them, but if no interest is shown, the District or Federal Government will be invited to take over.

Shrubbery Rush Over

John Q. Public, his friends, relatives, neighbors, and others started Sunday raiding fields once used by the Westcott Nursery, near Falls Church, across from Jefferson Village.

Mr. Public, et al., were getting ahead of buldozers which were about to annihilate the bushes still growing there. By yesterday morning, the mob became a problem for Fairfax County police.

Last night, nursery officials pleaded:

"Don't come out and don't call up any more. We're swamped with calls and people. The shrubs aren't any good or we would have taken them ourselves. And we aren't giving anything away to anybody. Period."

After 12 Years

$25,000 Hike Lets Lewis Paint House

The $25,000-a-year pay boost given John L. Lewis by his United Mine Workers Union last October is showing results. His 150-year-old house in Alexandria is getting its first coat of paint in 12 years.

After Lewis bought it in 1937, he hired AFL painters to paint it though he was then in the CIO. Now "disaffiliated" from both groups, he is having AFL men do the job again. Recently when a friend mentioned to him that the house needed paint, Lewis responded that such a job "costs a lot of money."

The home, at 614 Oronoco st., had accumulated enough grime in 12 years to necessitate electric machines to remove it, workmen said yesterday. The building was erected prior to 1791. George Washington's funeral is said to have been planned there and later it was occupied by a brother of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Suicide Thwarted

Suicide of a 39-year-old Washington woman were thwarted yesterday when police found her in a Union Station phone booth about half an hour after she had called a friend and had threatened to take her life.

Police said they found a full bottle of sleeping pills in the woman's purse. She said she had taken none of the pills, but was waiting for a long distance phone call. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital for observation.

Red Cross to Get Home

The American Red Cross expects to take physical possession of the home of the late Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, 15 Dupont Circle, today. H. J. Hughes, counsel for the organization, said yesterday no decision has been made as yet on use of the house. The house was willed to the Red Cross by Mrs. Patterson, who died last July.

Flag Display Urged

District Commissioners yesterday urged residents to display the American flag June 14, Flag Day. The city heads ordered the flag be flown on all municipal buildings on the day.

with the association in offering to renew the present $2.40 an hour contract for two years, but standing equally firm in refusing a pay raise.

The Builders Association contends that when the carpenters voted to strike, union officials had not informed the rank and file members of its proposal.

Union carpenters voted either to strike for $2.50 an hour or not to strike; they should have been allowed to vote either to strike for $2.50 an hour or to accept the association's renewal proposal of $2.40 an hour, the association claims.

At least one member of the 44 companies comprising the Master Builders Association broke ranks yesterday. McCloskey & Co., building the three-million-dollar substructure of a new research building, and a one-million-dollar utilities building, at the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, signed a new contract with the union.

Some 60 carpenters were at work yesterday on the McCloskey projects. The terms were not disclosed, but industry sources said a 10-cent boost was provided.

To Aid Carpenters

Meanwhile, the District Building Trades Council, representing most of the AFL building crafts in this area, voted yesterday to give the carpenters "all assistance within the law," according to Frank O'Connor, council secretary-treasurer. The carpenters are not members of the Building Trades Council.

For the time being at least, union sources said, the council's assistance would be little more than moral encouragement, inasmuch as all the other craftsmen have been ordered to report daily to work until laid off. There is no move afoot, the sources said, for any of the AFL unions to join the strike.

There was no conciliation meeting between the builders and carpenters yesterday, but the respective negotiations committees are still on call for any conference that might be called by the Federal Mediation Service.

Members of the Master Builders Association said 74 projects, including Government laboratories, schools, theaters, office buildings, shopping centers, banks and filling stations would be virtually shut down within 10 days.

Association members polled plus the status of their projects follow:

Walter B. Avery, 629 F st. nw. Six projects affected. Start of two has been postponed by strike.

Davis, Wick, Rosengarten Co., Inc., 613 15th st. nw. Carpenter superintendents are not on job. Work delayed on Alexandria school, Fairfax County seminary and Red Cross Building addition in Alexandria.

Victor R. Beauchamp, 6837 4th st. nw. Seven projects "completely shut down," seven others waiting to start.

E. L. Daniels, 2112 N. Quincy st., Arlington, Va. Work stopped on Walker Jones Elementary School and two churches. Boundary Channel Bridge work scheduled to stop at week's end.

Davis & Platt, Inc., 7898 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md. Work stopped on Montgomery County General Hospital. Filling station and shopping centers scheduled to close down this week.

Joseph B. Bahen Construction Co., Inc., 6220 3d st. nw. Two commercial projects "can't go far without carpenters," according to a spokesman.

W. M. Chappell Co., Anacostia, Md. Continuation of work on two schools in Greenbelt, Md., "very doubtful."

M. Gladny Construction Co., Inc., 635 F st. nw. Work on 14 commercial projects continuing "but probably not for long."

J. D. Hedin Construction Co., 820 Michigan ave. Work on the Kelly Miller Junior High School, 49th st. and Washington pl. ne., will be "tied up entirely in 10 days."

Herring and McCall, Hyattsville, Md. Construction of the Oxon Hill High School "closed down" yesterday.

The George Hyman Construction Co., 1010 Vermont ave. nw. Work on the two million dollar Sousa Junior High School and the three million dollar Glenn L. Martin College at the University of Maryland, "critically affected."

Jeffress-Dyer Inc., 908 20th st. nw. Three projects including a $3,500,000 Connecticut ave. apartment building "virtually shut down."

Cramer-Veilmerhausen Co., Inc., 2801 Connecticut ave. nw. Work at a standstill on the $1,240,000 utilities building for the District at Mount Olivet rd. and West Virginia ave., the three-million-dollar Continued Treatments Building at St. Elizabeths Hospital, and the Nalle High School at 50th and C sts. se.

Charles H. Tompkins Co., 907 18th st. nw. A 265-unit apartment building at 25th and K sts. nw. will be "shut down in two or three days," with two other projects.

E. H. Martell Co., Inc., 1023 20th st. nw. Three Government projects "closed down."

Zerkel Construction Co., Inc., 1011 20th st. nw. More than $556,000 worth of construction work "shut down completely."

Prescott Construction Co., Inc., 1307 W st. nw. Work "shuts down tight in one week" on the $2,500,000 addition to the telephone company building at 13th st. and the Masonic Temple at 13th and H sts. nw.

Skinker and Garrett, 1719 I st. nw. Work "almost closed down" on one million dollars worth of construction.

T. Calvin Owens, 1426 G st. nw. Work curtailed on two schools, the Ann Beers School at Alabama ave. and 36th pl. se. and the Birney Elementary School on Nichols ave. se.

Parkhill Construction Co., 14th st. and Park rd. nw. Work will continue for "ten more days" on the Bank of Silver Spring and a Hyattsville school.

Walkout Continues On Buggs Island Dam

Castle Heights, Va., June 1 (AP).—A work stoppage by more than 500 workers at the 78-million-dollar Buggs Island Dam project here continued today.

Pickets remained at the gates to the project site, where deputies from the office of Mecklenburg County Sheriff C. O. Mullins were on duty. No disturbance was reported.

A. L. Pauls, project manager for Jones-Tompkins-Wright, general contractors who hold the 13-million-dollar concrete pouring contract, said efforts would be made to employ new personnel and to resume full-scale operations as early as possible.

Senate Group To Ask Young To Closed Talk Next Thursday

Commissioner J. Russell Young will be invited to go before the Senate District Committee in a closed meeting next Thursday, Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) said yesterday.

Young's nomination for reappointment to a fourth term has been pending before the committee since May 6.

The committee unanimously agreed three weeks ago they wanted an informal session with Young before acting on his reappointment.

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), principal author of the Senate-passed home rule bill, said he wants to reach a "complete understanding" with Young on his attitude toward the suffrage measure.

Another member, Senator Neely (D., W. Va.) has indicated he wants to question the nominee on his Federal income tax returns for the year preceding his first appointment in 1940 and last year.

Neely never has elaborated on his proposed query and said yesterday he had nothing further to add.

The committee will also consider other pending business, including a bill to revise the Washington Gas Light Co.'s charter, another to put two permanent judges on the Juvenile Court bench and a measure to tighten bank regulations on check stop orders.

Rock Pointers Deny Unfair Treatment of Fishing Party

The Washington Post has received the following letter from the proprietors of the Rock Point Hotel, giving their version of an incident described in "Fisherman's Angle" of May 19, 1949.

The members of the fishing party, however, maintain that the article as originally printed, was correct.

Rock Point Hotel
Rock Point, Maryland
May 26, 1949

Mr. Philip T. Graham
The Washington Post
1337 E St. N.W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

The Post article appearing under Fisherman's Angle, May 19, 1949, entitled "Unhappy fishing party finds that boat would be handy on trip" does not present a fair picture of fishing facilities in the Rock Point-Cobb Island area, nor does it carry the proper account of the alleged difficulties of the fishing party mentioned therein.

We have been proprietors of the Rock Point Hotel for more than four years and have always tried to accomodate all comers, even though no promises had been made to the applicants. When our own fishing boat facilities were exhausted, we have gone to a great deal of trouble to obtain other boats to take parties fishing, our only interest in the matter being our desire to see every visitor to the hotel and to this community, have a pleasant and satisfactory outing.

Our skipper, Harold Rightmeyer, did promise on Friday night, May 13, that he would have a boat ready on Saturday morning for the party referred to. On Saturday morning it was discovered that someone had made off with the benches belonging to our boat. This did not make the boat unusable, but the skipper informed the party there were no benches, in order that they would not make a complaint about it later. This boat was in fact hired out to a party within a half hour after the first party left, the second party considering that the lack of benches was immaterial.

Mr. Carr appeared to be the spokesman for the group. We offered to procure Major Oystercamp's boat which was available for our use, and tied within sight of the hotel, and which chould have been made ready in five minutes. Mr. Rightmeyer also offered to get Mr. Herbert Wise's boat which was also available and could have been procured in short order. We certainly would have done no less for a party to whom we had promised a boat than we have always done for those to whom we had no obligation.

Mr. Carr insisted, however, that if we would only permit him to use our telephone to call Jack Simms on Cobb Island, everything would be all right. This he did, but what arrangements he made, I do not know. Whatever subsequently happened was a matter of their own choosing and not from any failure on our part to suppy them with a boat We would certainly have procured a boat if they had permitted it, and at the price of $2 per person as agreed.

Senate Group Slashes House-Backed Funds For 3 Departments

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended a reduction of nearly 13 million dollars in the House-approved budgets for the State, Justice and Commerce Departments.

In an executive session, it's reported to have rejected motions to make deeper slashes in the appropriation bill. This was the first time this year the Senate committee cut a House money bill.

The committee cutbacks, if enacted into law, will force a score of agencies in the three major departments to revise their operating plans for the 1950 fiscal year beginning on July 1. For example:

FBI: A cut of $1,598,141 was made in the budget of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The committee stressed, however, that the FBI would get every penny recommended by the President. The cut will wipe out about 500 prospective jobs if it stands. Even so, the FBI will be able to add several hundred additional employes.

ANTITRUST: The committee whacked off the $100,000 the House gave Justice's Antitrust Division over the amount recommended by the President. Antitrust still will have enough money to take on a few new people.

VOICE OF AMERICA: It was given a cut of $1,656,100. Previously, the House knocked off two million dollars from the budget estimate. State officials doubt if the slashes will result in the discharge of present employes in its foreign information and exchange program. However, new language programs to foreign countries that had been planned will be dropped.

Also, plans for the exchange of students under the Fulbright Act must be sharply cut back. Committee members were fearful that Communist students would benefit under the program. State's building program was cut from 20 million dollars to $9,520,100.

The department was given all the money it asked for salaries and expenses here. The amount would allow State to add about 200 new people here.

COMMERCE: The Secretary's office was allowed $158,000 more than the House approved. It still will have to make a few layoffs. The committee cut $1,115,000 from Census' fund to make a general population census next year, a total of nearly 30 million dollars under the amount requested. It restored $115,000 of the House cut for general administration of the Census Bureau.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD was given $159,500 more than the House alowed for salaries and expenses. . . . PATENT OFFICE got an increase of $300,000 from the House allowed for salaries and expenses . . . COMMERCE'S field offices were given $75,000, an amount which would prevent the closing of two of the offices. . . . WEATHER BUREAU got an increase of $359,000 for salaries and expenses, and the BUREAU OF STANDARDS was given a $200,000 boost for salaries.

EXPORT CONTROL was given a $500,000 slash, a reduction which would force additional layoffs . . . JUSTICE'S Lands' Division was given a $46,000 boost. No other changes were made in the House bill by the Senate committee except those noted above.

HEARING EXAMINERS: Half a dozen well-known attorneys have urged the Civil Service Commission to throw out the test for Federal hearing examiners.

The lawyers contend that the exam was illegally conducted, that the Civil Service Commission doesn't have the authority to delegate its examining function to an outside board of consultants.

Among the attorneys who joined in the motion were Charles Horsky, Paul Porter, Charles Fahy, William Leahy, R. Granville Curry and Gerhard van Arkel. They urged the commission also to cover into Civil Service all incumbent hearing examiners.

If the commission rejects the two pleas, it will be asked to supply the attorneys with detailed information on which ineligibility ratings were given their clients.

In filing a brief for a group of examiners in the National Labor Relations Board, Horsky charged both economic and racial bias on the part of the consultants. He presented the commission with a score of affidavits to support his charge.

Coincidence Questioned As Edwards Asks Retrial

Delay in Finding Of Cartridge Cited In Maryland Case Where 2 Were Slain

Two important questions have been raised in the affidavit now on file in Baltimore Criminal Court in support of a motion for a new trial for Thomas A. Edwards.

Edwards, 23-year-old stevedore, was convicted four months ago of murdering John H. Mahlan, 25, and Mahlan's girl friend, Mary C. Kline, 18, in Anne Arundel County, Md., on September 17, 1948.

The questions raised are these:

Was it coincidence that a curious passerby picked up an empty cartridge shell at the scene where the bodies were found—when a week earlier a police officer searched the same ground carefully for six hours without finding such evidence?

Was it coincidence that the spot where the bodies were found, in a clearing off the Chesterfield rd. about six miles west of Annapolis, had previously been visited by Mahlan?

The affidavit was filed by William J. McWililams and Ridgely P. Melvin, jr., Edwards' attorneys, who will argue the motion for a new trial Saturday before the 11 judges of the Supreme Bench of Baltimore.

The principal new evidence offered in the affidavit is the fact that State Trooper James J. Harbaugh made a thorough, six-hour search of the area in which a cartridge later was found.

The defense now apparently seeks to show that if the shell had been fired from Edwards' gun the night of the murder it would have been found by Trooper Harbaugh.

The affidavit states that Harbaugh made "a careful and intensive search" of the area immediately around where the bodies had lain.

"He raked over the ground in that area," says the affidavit. "He cut down weeds and grass and placed them in a box. He procured a piece of screening, sifted the ground, grass and other debris."

As for the scene itself, the attorneys state in the affidavit that prior to the trial they had read a newspaper account which said that a young Glen Burnie woman had taken police to various spots visited by lovers, among them the clearing where the bodies were found.

The attorneys say the subsequent investigation has brought them the information that the girl was Margaret Armstrong, formerly of Glen Burnie and now of Washington.

The latter evidence is an apparent attempt to discredit the State's story that Edwards shot Mahlan and clubbed Miss Kline near Glen Burnie and then drove Mahlan's car some miles to that spot—which was known to Mahlan—to dispose of the bodies.

It was erroneously stated in an AP dispatch in The Washington Post yesterday that Edwards had been sentenced to death. He has not yet been sentenced.

Police Vice And Sex Units Reshuffled

Richard F. McCarty, acting lieutenant, was assigned to the vice squad yesterday in a series of reshuffles in which Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett stirred up his vice and sex squads.

Barrett said the changes were a continuation of his policy of rotating members of the vice squad so members will not become too well known to gamblers.

McCarty, who has been in charge of the sex squad, will be second in command of the vice squad under Lieut. Roy Blick.

Precinct Detective Michael Apperti of the sex squad, Pvt. Louis Screen of the Second Precinct, and Pvt. Orville Erfert of the Ninth Precinct are detailed to the vice squad.

Relieved of assignment to the vice squad are Sergt. Albert B. Nicholson, jr., who is transferred from the Tenth to the Eleventh Precinct, Pvt. Melvin M. Conner, who is shifted from the Thirteenth to the Ninth Precinct, and Pvt. William A. Elliott, who is transferred from the First Precinct to the detective bureau.

Other transfers announced yesterday were:

Sergt. Arthur B. Cross, from the Fifth to the Seventh Precinct.

Pvt. David G. Dant, from the Fourth to the Second Precinct.

Pvt. Hovey A. Lord, from the Third Precinct to administrative headquarters.

Pvt. William B. Whitlock, from the Second Precinct to the traffic division.

Board of Education May Give Instructions To Its Representative On Segregation Vote

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Board of Education today may instruct its representative on the District Recreation Board how to vote on the segregation issue.

Albert E. Steinem, representative, who also is a Board of Education member, said last night he expects to be instructed at today's meeting, the last before the recreation unit's showdown vote scheduled for June 14. The public meeting begins at 3:30 p. m.

But the Board of Education may not even consider a "compromise" proposal on the segregation issue today, though it probably will win ultimate approval of the recreation unit.

This is the reason:

The Recreation Board has before it a proposal by the Interior Department, filed by National Capital Parks Superintendent Irving C. Root, to end segregation in areas and activities under the board's control.

But the Recreation Board's by-laws committee, it has been learned, has voted, 3 to 1, to oppose the Root proposal at the June 14 meeting. Voting in opposition were Chairman Harry S. Wender, Vice Chairman James E. Schwab, who heads the by-laws committee, and Mrs. Andrew Saul. Only vote for the Root proposal came from Mrs. Alice Hunter, only Negro member of the board.

The fifth member of the by-laws group is Steinem. He said he has taken no part in committee discussions because he has as yet no instructions on Root's proposal from the Board of Education.

Root and Walter Fowler, District Budget Director, who is the District Commissioners' representative on the Recreation Board, are not members of the by-laws group. Fowler has asked, but not yet received, instructions from the Commissioners on the Root proposal.

The by-laws committee has been working on a "compromise" proposal, but Vice Chairman Schwab said yesterday work has not yet been completed. He had said earlier two of the five members have approved it.

Steinem said he cannot bring the "compromise" proposal before the Board of Education today, however, because it still is considered secret by the by-laws unit. Schwab said he could not release it because it has not yet been completed.

Called to White House

The "compromise" is understood to pledge an eventual end to segregated play. It would take the form of a statement by the Recreation Board rather than as a change in the by-laws.

The statement, as reported in The Washington Post 10 days ago, would point out that while the end of segregation, in line with the President's civil rights program, is the aim of local officials, many administrative problems must first be worked out.

Some members of the by-laws committee have been hopeful the Commissioners would subscribe to the "compromise." But they have not yet done so. The commissioners were called to the White House by President Truman two weeks ago to talk about ending segregation in line with the civil rights program.

One change in the segregation picture the Recreation Board is expected to approve June 14 is to permit after-school use of public school buildings and recreation buildings for mixed gatherings.

Chairman Wender brought up the proposal at the May meeting but action was postponed until June. The motion, which may involve a by-laws change, may even win unanimous approval.

The Board of Education today is expected to grant the Recreation Board use of the school buildings this year as it has done in the past.

Boy Drowns; Fifth Violent Family Death

For the second time in 15 months tragedy struck a District family yesterday when Richard Mills, jr., 17, of 30 16th st. se., was drowned in Kingman Lake behind Gallinger Hospital.

The boy's mother, grandmother and two of his sisters were burned to death in a fire here in March, 1948.

The Mills boy and six companions had climbed to a concrete abutment overlooking Kingman Lake at about 2:30 p. m. yesterday. The others hesitated because of the treacherous currents, but Richard leaped in and was immediately pulled under by the current.

His cousin, Lawrence Woodland, 16, of the same address, jumped in after him to try and save him, police said. The cousin was able to grab Richard but had to abandon him because of his frantic struggles.

Harbor police dragged the scene and recovered the boy's body about 30 minutes later.

District Man Injured Fatally In Arlington

7 Hurt, 4 Badly, In Head-On Crash Near Linden Hills

He was Robert L. Cunningham, 35, of 1339 First st. sw.

Pvt. R. D. Wellman of Park Police was told the victim stepped off a loading platform in front of a parked bus and then into the path of a moving bus driven by George L. Plummer, jr., 34, Vienna, Va.

Cunningham's skull was fractured. He died two hours later at Arlington Hospital.

Inquest Plans Delayed

Because of confusion in jurisdiction, plans for an inquest were held up. Arlington police said the fatality was a District one, and District authorities contended it belongs to Arlington. Park police have jurisdiction at Rosslyn Circle.

Seven persons were injured, four seriously, in a head-on automobile collision on Central ave., near Linden Hills, Md., about 4 p. m. yesterday. James T. An 18-year-old mother who was pushing her baby in a carriage on the sidewalk was struck by a careening car yesterday after the car had collided with a Health Department ambulance.

The accident was at 9:40 a. m. at Georgia ave. and Columbia rd. nw. Police said the vehicles involved were the ambulance, driven by Hugh Butler, 36, of 717 24th st. nw., and the car, operated by Mrs. Anna V. Juliano, 41, of 903 Perry pl. ne.

4-Month-Old Baby Unhurt

The impact sent Mrs. Juliano's car over the curb where it struck the young mother, Mrs. Louise Arnold, of 602 Irving st. nw. Mrs. Arnold's 4-month-old daughter was not hurt.

Mrs. Arnold was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for knee cuts. No one else was injured. Police said the ambulance was on its way to a hospital with a patient.

Cab Injures Woman

Mrs. Julia Nichols, 67, of 148 F st. se, suffered a fractured right wrist when she was struck by a cab shortly before noon at 2nd and E sts. se. She was admitted to Casualty Hospital but her condition is not serious.

2 Missing Girls Found Sleeping Near Monument

Two 14-year-old girls, missing from their Baltimore homes since Sunday, were picked up early yesterday by Park Police while sleeping in the Washington Monument Grounds.

The pair had deceived Pvt. Alfred Capasso of Park Police when he questioned them Tuesday with two young men at the Monument Grounds. They gave ages as 18, he said, and false names.

When Capasso saw a pickup order on them yesterday, he began search and found them. They spent Sunday and Monday nights in a Washington hotel, they said, and slept at Union Station and the Monument Grounds Tuesday night.

Midshipmen Hail Color Girl In June Week Parade Climax

Three cheers from the brigade of 3200 blue-and-white-uniformed midshipmen roared out for blue-eyed Marie Badecker, June Week color girl from Teaneck, N. J.

While 36 companies stood at attention, Miss Badecker presented the colors to her fiance, Midshipman George M. Benas, jr., 23, of Utica, N. Y.

The seventy-third color girl in an annual ceremony dating back to 1871, she transferred the Stars and Stripes and the Blue Brigade flag from the Fifteenth Company to the Twenty-second.

In a year-long competition, the Twenty-second won the right to march as the color company in 1950. Benas, as company commander, chose the girl he met four years ago on a crowded train.

Miss Badecker, 22-year-old daughter of a New York steamship executive, and Benas will be married at Teaneck on Saturday the day after graduation. Benas will start training next fall to become a Navy pilot.

Forty-two of the 790 graduating midshipmen will be married in week-end ceremonies at the Naval Academy chapel. Others are to wed at Annapolis churches, or in hometown ceremonies.

The color girl parade, one of the Navy's most sentimental ceremonies, was watched by thousands of parents and sweethearts at Worden Field.

Twenty-five contestants tonight will vie for "Miss American Legion, District of Columbia, 1949" in the first annual beauty contest of the Legion's Department of the District of Columbia aboard the SS Bear Mountain, during the local Legion annual boatride. The boat will leave the 7th st. wharf at 8:30 p. m.

Three hundred disabled veterans from local hospitals, transported to and from the boat by the Red Cross, will be guests of the Legion on the trip. The judges will be from Washington newspapers and radio stations.

"I talked to quite a few of the students," Paro said, "and they seemed to feel it was for the good of the corps. Western's won so often, the others got discouraged."

Paro termed the depleted ranks of the drilling cadets "kind of pitiful."

Paro suggested the schools might give "some sort of award—a major letter for example" in order to stir up more Corps spirit.

Washington's Negro high schools will hold their 57th annual competitive drill today and Friday, also in Griffith Stadium, and starting each day at 9 a. m. Awards will be presented Friday at 2:30 p. m.

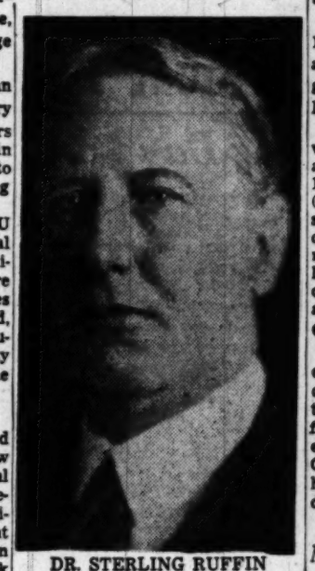
Dr. Sterling Ruffin, 82, Dies; Dean of D. C. Practitioners

Dr. Sterling Ruffin, 82, venerable dean of Washington medicine, died yesterday morning at George Washington University Hospital.

He was a practicing physician here for more than half a century before his retirement two years ago. He entered the hospital in January. Death was attributed to cerebral thrombosis, or clotting in the arteries in the brain.

Professor of medicine at GWU for 22 years, he taught medical practice to more than 1200 medical students, many of whom are now practicing in United States and foreign lands. The snow-haired, cigar-smoking practitioner and educator outlived perhaps a majority of his student graduates of the years 1902 to 1904.



DR. STERLING RUFFIN

Friend of President Wilson

In 1917, Dr. Ruffin, friend and physician to President Woodrow Wilson, was attending a medical convention in Boston when he received a telegram from the President announcing his appointment as District Commissioner. Within the hour, he had telegraphed back his thanks, and refused because of the demands of his practice.

He fought group medical practice from its inception, and became more and more embittered at what he termed "these shenanigans on Capitol Hill," legislative measures encouraging group practice, a close friend said.

Dr. Ruffin was born on July 20, 1868, at Graham, N. C., the son of a North Carolina physician and grandson of Chief Justice Thomas Ruffin of North Carolina.

He was graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1884, and received his M. D. degree in 1890 from Columbia University (now George Washington University) here. Three years later, he opened for practice at 1150 Connecticut ave. nw., the same office he maintained when he retired "to catch up on my reading" two years ago.

GWU Professor in 1902

In 1902 he was named professor of medicine at GWU and physician-in-chief of the GWU Hospital, serving in the dual capacity for 22 years. Later he was named emeritus professor of medicine at GWU (in 1944) in which position he continued to serve until his death.

During his medical practice in Washington, Dr. Ruffin treated patients ranging from charity cases up to the President of the United States. For three years preceding the death of President Woodrow Wilson, in February 1924, he was one of three physicians attending the President whom he looked upon almost as an idol.

A lifelong Democrat, he maintained to his death one of the most extensive libraries on the life and work of Woodrow Wilson.

George Washington University conferred on Dr. Ruffin its honorary degree of doctor of sciences in 1932, and until his death he was the sole male member (associate member) of the Women's Board of GWU Hospital.

He never married.

A rugged individualist and steadfast foe of group medical practice, he joined other Washington physician opponents to such practice in an unsuccessful attempt in 1938 to outlaw the then newly formed Group Health Association.

Dr. Ruffin was president of the District of Columbia Medical Society, 1935-36, a member of the American Clinical Association of Medicine, the American Medical Association and the Clinico-Pathological Society of the District of Columbia.

He was also a member of the Washington Academy of Medicine, Alpha Tau Omega, and the medical fraternity, Phi Chi.

He leaves a brother, Thomas Ruffin, Washington attorney, a nephew, Dr. William B. Sims; and a sister-in-law, Mrs. George Ruffin, all of this city; three nieces, Mrs. Emanuel Wallerstein and Miss Jane Ruffin Sims, both of Richmond, Va., and Miss Barbara Ruffin, of Washington, and a cousin, Dr. Marshall Ruffin, Washington psychiatrist.

Funeral services will be at noon, Friday, at the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw. Burial will be at Hillsboro, N. C.

CARPENTERS STRIKE!

What's It All About?

TO CARPENTERS AND ALL MEN INTERESTED IN CONSTRUCTION

HERE ARE THE FACTS. PLEASE READ CAREFULLY. In fairness to you, your families and the general public, we wish to bring them to your attention.

The negotiations with the Carpenters have been carried on by a committee representing the Construction Contractors Council, which is composed of virtually all employers of union construction craftsmen in the Washington area.

The Contractors' Committee on April 28, 1949, over three weeks prior to the Carpenters vote on May 21, 1949, offered the Carpenters A NEW AGREEMENT WITH THE EXISTING RATE OF $2.40 and which did not require any reduction whatsoever in pay.

The only change asked by the contractors was that the one hour layoff notice be changed to one-half hour. This causes no reduction in wages. Otherwise, THE EXISTING AGREEMENT WAS TO BE RENEWED FOR ONE YEAR WITH THE PRESENT RATE OF $2.40.

Over three weeks later, when the Carpenters membership voted on May 21, 1949, the Carpenters District Council ignored the Contractors proposal of the existing $2.40 rate and, instead, substituted their own proposal of $2.50 and requested the membership to cast a strike vote for $2.50. The membership was given no choice but to vote yes or no to the $2.50 union proposal. They were not given the opportunity to vote on the Contractors' proposal of $2.40 and the letter sent out requesting them to vote did not mention the Contractors' proposal of $2.40.

WHY WERE THE MEN NOT PERMITTED TO CONSIDER AND VOTE UPON THE CONTRACTORS' PROPOSAL THE SAME AS THE UNION'S PROPOSAL.

The employers, represented by the Construction Contractors Council, feel that in these times of reduced volume of work, reduced living costs, increased unemployment with many construction mechanics unemployed, all of which is proven by Government statistics, the industry, the public and the workmen, will be better served and conditions made more stable, now and for the future, by insisting on neither an increase or decrease in wage rates.

Rumors are widespread that the Carpenters must strike to avoid having their wages cut. THAT IS A FALSE REPORT.

FOR OVER THREE WEEKS BEFORE THE CARPENTERS STRIKE VOTE, THE CONTRACTORS' PROPOSAL WAS $2.40. IT IS STILL $2.40. IT WILL CONTINUE TO BE $2.40.

International Air Attaches Meet At Lauzins' Gay Garden Fete

By Elizabeth Maguire

AIR ATTACHES of the different nations were entertained yesterday afternoon in the garden of the French Air Attache, Brig. Gen. Charles Lauzin, and Mme. Lauzin. A buffet was set up on the terraced lawn, which was bordered by a rock creek and beds of white peonies and red geraniums.

Mme. Lauzin received her guests costumed in a blue linen frock sent to her from France by her mother. Her blond hair was piled high on her head, and she wore gold link bracelets and pearl choker. The host was in summer attire white flannel uniform with gold studded black epaulets.

The Ambassador of France, Henri Bonnet, attended and it was learned that Mme. Bonnet would return to Washington in about two weeks. Mme. Bonnet's niece, Miss Sophie Mayer, in a pretty blue silk print, was there talking with Albert Fequant, newly arrived Attache at the French Embassy.

Two other French bachelors in attendance were Capt. Pierre Lancelot Naval Attache, and Jean Daridan, Counselor of the embassy. Admiral and Mrs. Emory Scott land and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tartiere were also among the guests.

Party hours were 6 to 8 o'clock, but it was nearly 9 o'clock before the ranks even started to break. It was easy indeed to linger in the garden, as it is one of the greenest, prettiest spots in Washington. The little valley where the stream runs below the terraced garden is thickly wooded, and leading down to it are flower-bordered rock steps.

Air Attaches in the gathering included Brig. Gen. Gustavo A. Hermansson of Argentina and Mme. Hermansson, Group Capt. M. O. Watson of Australia and Mrs. Watson, Group Capt. Robert C. Jonas of Great Britain and Mrs. Jonas, Col. Carlo Unia of Italy and Mme. Unia, Maj. Count I. G. Du Monceau of Belgium and Mme. Du Monceau, Lieut. Col. A. Serra de Menezes of Brazil and Senhora de Menezes, Maj. Pierre Haspil of Haiti and Mme. Haspil, Lieut. Gen. Leobardo C. Ruiz of Mexico and Senoro de Ruiz and Col. Roelof Roos of the Netherlands and Mme. Roos.

There were many more air-minded gentlemen and their uniforms gave a colorful air to the party.

Lieut. Gen. and Mrs. Wade Haislip were in the American contingent, along with Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Milton Arnold, Brig. Gen. Martin F. Scanlon, Col. and Mrs. Crawford Knox, Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne W. Parrish and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Reichelderfer, followed by a reception at the Sulgrave Club.

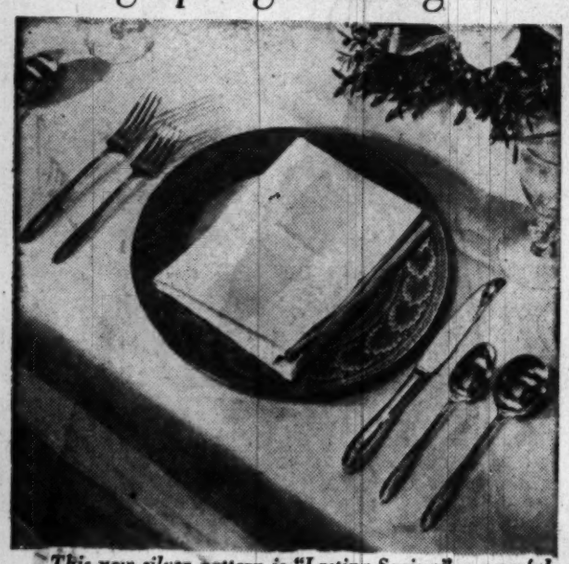
'Wondertub,' Squeeze Dryer, 'Lasting Spring' Sterling Bow



This new silver pattern is "Lasting Spring," a graceful design that goes well with either modern or traditional table appointments

By Lucia Brown

A BRAND-NEW system of washing, draining, and drying clothes becomes available to the public June 6 when the latest models of one of the best-known washing machines goes on sale.

A "wondertub" of a new, pliable, and extremely tough synthetic material is the secret of the washer, an automatic, top-loading type. This tub functions with agitator action, then squeezes in under vacuum pressure, to force dirty suds and water down the center hollow agitator. Heavier-than-water sediment flushes out the tub bottom, so that no dirty water filters through the clothes. Two warm water rinsings follow, then the tub gently but firmly closes in again to squeeze all excess water from the clothes. Vibrationless and requiring no bolting to the floor, the new washer is housed in a square porcelain box which fits neatly into the modern kitchen.

"LASTING SPRING" is the news this week in sterling silver. This new pattern is being introduced by the same company that makes two other favorites, "Damask Rose" and "Mansion House." It has unusually graceful lines, with decorative modeling along the edges of the handles only. This represents the delicate buds of spring, tapers down to a rounded point at the end of the handle. The new pattern is suited to either a modern or traditional setting.

SELF-SEALING and non-porous are two of the words for a fine water-solvent paint which is being introduced here. Made for interior use, it looks a good deal like any flat wall paint when applied, but from an angle has a soft sheen. It won't soak into any surface—it's painted on wood, beaverboard, wallboard, plaster—and therefore makes an excellent primer on fresh plaster walls that ordinarily "drink" in paint.

Cleaning's a cinch, they say, since ink, crayon, and finger smudges can be wiped away with mild soap and water. The paint has a synthetic base which defies water penetration. The company making it guarantees money back if within two years it becomes streaked, spotted, or loses color as a result of washing.

For Day or Date, $8.95

A dress you'll wear and adore the summer through. Silky broadcloth, washable and sanforized in light blue, maize, pink and lilac. Junior sizes.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 21, Is Normally Happy in Every Way, Except That She Is Deathly Afraid to Try To Swim and Her Fiance Is Sharp About This

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 21 and normal and happy in every way, except that I cannot learn to swim because of my fear of the water. Just standing in water doesn't bother me, but trying to swim scares me to death, and this problem has bothered me ever since I can remember.

Now I am engaged to be married, my fiance is an excellent swimmer, and we and our friends belong to the local country club, and our crowd spends most of the summer months swimming at the club pool. This leaves me sitting alone at the side of the pool, and naturally I dread the approach of summer.

My fiance Dick has tried innumerable times to teach me to swim, but his efforts always end in a quarrel, because he can't seem to understand my fear and becomes terribly impatient. He says it's all in my head and that I am acting like a child.

From the time I was seven years old my parents have done everything they could to help me overcome this fear, and I have taken swimming lessons and tried hard to cooperate; but the fear always wins. Is there any way for me to learn to swim, or should I stay away from the water entirely? Your advice will be much appreciated. E. T.

An Inborn Basis for Such Anxiety

DEAR E. T.: The human being seems heir to two inborn fears, suggested by the infant's unconscious reflexes when he is as yet too new in the world to have had conditioning experiences. These are (1) fear of falling and (2) fear of sudden loud noise,—to which he reacts jumpily, with instinctive panic, as if sensing danger to his hold on life.

To assuage and help him outgrow these fears inherent in his will-to-survive, the innately good—i. e., maturely protective,—care-taker handles the babe during his infancy with firm enveloping reassurance when bathing, feeding, dressing and play-exercising him.

He is snugly bedded on a flat firm mattress, spared noise-blasts, such as doors slamming (insofar as possible), and quickly picked up for soothing if a jolt occurs. Thus his inborn fears are supplanted by conditioned faith in a safety-situation, in which he may relax, grow and experimentally expand his potentials.

Needs Love-Surety to Relax Rigidity

BUT SUPPOSE these inborn fears aren't annulled by security-nurture in infancy; that, instead, they are aggravated by a history of poor handling or insidious indifference to his feelings all through childhood—with the parents meanwhile prodding him to be "big," brave, self reliant, etc.,—then you may expect that child to shrink abnormally from swimming, for instance,—because he has no implicit conviction that he can relax in safety in the new element.

At the other extreme, inordinately possessive rearing, which premasticates every new experience for the child up to school age, may bring him limply helpless to the pool's edge, too, manifesting "I can't" terror such as yours.

Those who scold your fears are wrong. They merely intensify a thousandfold the nervous rigidity of your conflict between fear of death by drowning, and anxious striving to learn to swim, as a bid for love-security. It is this rigidity that defeats your efforts to learn, and if it were dissolved you could float with ease. Ergo, steadfast assurance of being completely loved "as is" by parents and beau would break the jinx—and I wish they had the good sense to give you that basic help. M. H.

Eggs a la Goldenrod

MORNING FARE takes on a new and special appeal when the eggs appear a la goldenrod in little noodle baskets.

To start the meal, you might have broiled grapefruit, and, to go with the eggs, crisp bacon, buttered toast, jelly, and coffee or cocoa. You can purchase the little fried nests at some bakeries or packaged in grocery stores. If you can't get them ready-made, you can arrange fried Chinese noodles to make nests on the plates. Here's how to prepare the eggs:

- 8 hard-cooked eggs
- 4 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 4 tablespoons flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk

Make a white sauce as follows: Melt fat in saucepan, add flour, and salt, and blend until smooth. Stir in cold milk gradually and cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until sauce boils and becomes thick and smooth.

Separate the white and yolks of the cooked eggs. Chop the egg whites and add to white sauce and heat through. Press egg yolks in noodle nests and sprinkle sieved egg yolks on top. This recipe makes six servings.

Volunteers To Be Taught Silver Craft

Provided you can qualify, here is an opportunity to learn a useful and entertaining skill while helping somebody else.

Mrs. Bruce H. Roberts, chairman of the Red Cross Arts and Skills Service, announces that a limited number of volunteers will be trained in the making of silver jewelry, in order that they may teach it to patients in the Forest Glen section of Walter Reed Hospital.

Volunteers who complete this course in turn teach the patients to make many articles of silver. They include carved and twisted bracelets, identification bracelets, rings, lapel and scatter pins, earrings, necklaces, tie clasps, money clasps, cheese knives, napkin rings, cuff links, salt spoons, baby cups, wedding rings, and pillboxes.

"In exchange for this valuable instruction, we ask that the persons given the course pledge themselves to give one day a week for at least a year to instructing the patients in jewelry making," Mrs. Roberts said.

The course to be taught at the Forest Glen section of Walter Reed opened Monday. Registrations are being taken through June 3. Those interested should call Mrs. Roberts, Re. 8300, Ext. 762.

About 'At Home' Invitation

I have been married a year and four months. I am still wondering if it is too late to have my reception. If not, I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me how to word my invitation? M. B.

It would be too late to have a wedding reception, but if you are now settled in your new home, you could very appropriately have an open house or "at-home" to greet your friends. The same ones you would have invited to the wedding reception would be invited. As invitations you could use the folded informals with yours and your husband's names printed or engraved on the front. On the inside write:

At Home
Sunday, June 10
3 to 5 P. M.
Your address

Or, if you do not wish to use informals you could write the same information on small plain cards and sign it Mary and John Smith.

Another very acceptable form for such an invitation is to write informal notes to the guests as you would a letter on informal note paper.

Would you print information related to the use of powdered pepsin in removing perspiration odor from garments? M. M. T.

Dampen the affected areas with warm water to which a few drops of vinegar have been added and dust the powdered pepsin over it. Work it well into the cloth and let stand one to two hours, keeping the spot moist. At the end of the time, allow the area to dry and brush off as much as the powder as possible. Rinse well.

Could you tell me how to remove a grease stain (automobile grease, I believe) from cotton chambray? I tried washing in soapy water with a little bleach, but this didn't work too well although the stain did fade to some extent. E. M. DeS.

Since you have applied soap and bleach to the stain it may not come out completely now. However, try covering it with a colorless vaseline or lard and rubbing it between the hands to penetrate the stain. Let stand 30 minutes or so, rubbing occasionally. This may soften the stain so it will wash out with soap and water. Do not apply soap to the stain as long as additional grease can be loosened.

Can wallpaper be applied over water-painted surface? R. R.

Yes, if you will first apply a sizing to the walls. You can buy a sizing for this purpose where paints and wallpapers are sold.

I would like to know how to clean children's fuzzy toys with a dry shampoo using cornmeal with something else added. Can you tell me how this is done? B. O. B.

Moisten the cornmeal with carbon tetrachloride or similar dry cleaning fluid and rub it into the pile of the toy. Let stand until dry and brush or shake out. Treatment can be repeated as often as you see improvement.

The lining of a red suit faded on a white rayon blouse. It is on the underarm. Rinsing in cold water and placing in the sun with the spot covered in salt and lemon juice failed to remove it. Have you any suggestions to remove it? L. M.

You may be able to remove the spot by dampening it with water and sprinkling sodium perborate over it. After the perborate has been sprinkled on, rub the area between the hands so that it will penetrate the fabric. Let stand for an hour or so, rubbing occasionally. Rinse thoroughly. If all the stain is not removed with the first treatment, repeat.

A New Secret Blend —"Selecciones"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

For children there is nothing that will quite take the place of a real garden, which is taken care of with hoes and rakes and all the paraphernalia that grown-ups use. Now that so many of us live in cities and towns, however, this isn't always possible.

The indoor window-sill garden can bring a lot of fun and some interesting information to our city-bound children. Here are a a few ideas.

Scatter a little bird seed into the openings of a wet sponge; place kernels of corn on wet blotting paper kept in a shallow saucer; plant some of the morning's grapefruit seeds in a pot of dirt. These are some of the simplest beginnings of a short-time indoor garden. Keeping the seeds damp and giving them a place in the sun are all that is necessary to keep the "garden" growing.

Another attractive garden can be made from kitchen vegetables. The top part of beets, carrots, and turnips kept in a dish of moist pebbles will soon develop a good deal of foliage. Or if one wedges the pointed end of a sweet potato into a jar of water, leaving space below for the roots to grow, the growth of both leaves and roots can be watched.

East-West Rift Includes Nuptial Circlets, Too

A cleavage between East and West over width of wedding rings is apparent today, according to a pre-June survey of jewelry manufacturers.

Eastern brides are returning to narrow tailored bands of platinum, palladium or gold, while out West elaborately carved wide bands in two and four-tone effects are in vogue, it is revealed.

Western demand is for rings ranging from one quarter to as much as one half an inch in width. Wedding rings that reach the first knuckle on the third finger left hand, with several large diamonds mounted in palladium, are still being sold in Texas and other Western States.

Throughout the country the preponderance of orders is for rings in the white precious metals.

BIDS AND PROPOSALS 6

$450,000. WASHINGTON SUBURBAN Sanitary District, Maryland, refunding bonds, Series "B", guaranteed by Montgomery and Prince Georges counties. Sealed proposals will be received until 3 o'clock p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, on Tuesday, June 14, 1949, by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission at its office, 4017 Hamilton st., Hyattsville, Md., for $450,000 refunding bonds, Series "B", of the Washington Suburban Sanitary District, dated June 1, 1949, maturing annually, June 1, without option of prior payment, $20,000 in each of the years, 1950 to 1959, inclusive, and $25,000 in each of the years, 1960 to 1969, inclusive. Denomination, $1,000; principal and semiannual interest (J and D 1) payable at the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., Hyattsville, Md., or at the Equitable Trust Co., Baltimore, Md., or at Chemical Bank & Trust Co., New York City, N. Y., at holder's option; general obligations; unlimited tax; coupon bonds registerable as to principal alone; unconditionally guaranteed as to both principal and interest by Montgomery and Prince Georges Counties by endorsement on each bond. There will be no auction. Bonds will be delivered on or about June 29, 1949, at place of purchaser's choice. The Refunding Bond Series "B" will be issued under the authority of Chapter 261 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland of 1947, to provide funds for refunding a like amount of 5% bonds (part of an issue of $750,000 of said 5% bonds) which have been called for redemption on July 1, 1949. Bidders are requested to name the interest rate or rates, not exceeding 4% per annum, in a multiple of ¼ or 1/10 of 1%, and each bidder must specify in his bid the amount and the maturities of the bonds of each rate. No bid may name more than three interest rates and all bonds maturing on the same date must bear interest at the same rate. No bid of less than par and accrued interest or for less than all of the bonds offered will be entertained. The bonds will be awarded to the bidder offering to purchase the bonds at the lowest interest cost to the District, such cost to be determined by deducting the total amount of the premium bid from the aggregate amount of interest upon all of the bonds until their respective maturities. Each proposal must be enclosed in a sealed envelope marked "Proposal for Bonds," and be accompanied by a certified check upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable unconditionally to the order of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, for $4500. The right to reject any or all bids is reserved. The approving opinion of Messrs. Mitchell and Pershing, New York City, will be furnished the purchasers without cost. Circular on request and proposals must be submitted on information contained therein. WASHINGTON SUBURBAN SANITARY COMMISSION. By J. DARBY BOWMAN, Secretary-Treasurer. 2. 3

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received at the Procurement Section, National Bureau of Standards, 620 11th st. nw., Washington 25, D. C., until 2 p. m., June 8, 1949, and then publicly opened for furnishing necessary labor and materials for alterations to laboratories in basement of East Wing of Industrial Building No. 11, National Bureau of Standards, as described in the specifications and drawings which may be obtained from the Procurement Section, National Bureau of Standards. 2.3

What's the Verdict

DOUBLE JEOPARDY

Q. A crowd of young men brawled in a tavern one night, one of them being struck on the head with a blackjack. While the injured youth was in the hospital, apparently recovering, one of the brawlers named Thug, was tried on a charge of assault with intent to kill. He was acquitted. A couple of weeks afterward, the injured youth died. Thug thereupon was charged with murder, the State having in the meantime found new witnesses to the fight. Thug pleads that the prior acquittal bars the murder charge. Is he correct?

A. Thug is relying on the Constitutional guaranty against a person's being put twice in jeopardy by the same State (or the Federal Government) for the same crime. In this case, however, when Thug was tried for assault with intent to kill, the greater crime of murder had not yet been consummated.

Acquittal of a major offense operates as acquittal of lesser offenses that might have been included in the indictment for the major offense; but not vice versa. Thug is subject to trial for murder.—F. L. D.

Cases discussed illustrate general principles. They should not be construed as legal advice in particular cases. Take your legal problems to your lawyer.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Light Subject Deepens Into Dark Mystery

The other day we had an inquiry from a reader who wondered why the Capitol dome lights were left burning after midnight.

Arthur E. Cook, assistant architect of the Capitol, explained that it must have been an illusion caused by the reflection of smaller lights in the foggy atmosphere; because as far as he knew, the big dome floodlights always go off at midnight.

But Josephine L. Burke of 1870 Wyoming ave. nw, won't "buy" that explanation. She slept very little last Tuesday night, and noticed that the dome was brilliantly lit—not only that night, but for the next three nights as well.

On the fourth night, and thereafter, they were turned off at midnight. Says District Liner Burke:

"If Cook says they were off, maybe they were. But I'll take bets that they were not."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

We need a slight crusade started. It concerns Ladies' Days at the ball park. More specifically—the lack of same.

In the good old days, every Friday used to be Ladies' Day, and the faithful would always be on hand.

Came the war, and Washington's swollen population went to the games in greater numbers. So Ladies' Days became intermittent affairs. Now they've been entirely eliminated.

I think Griff is making a big mistake. Most of us gals can't afford to rob the grocery money of $1.25 very often, but we'd love to go at a more nominal fee.

How about giving the campaign a starting shove, and see how the other District Liners feel about it?

Mrs. Howard A. Courtney

Dear Mrs. Courtney:

Cal Griffith says the ladies aren't interested in special days any more, and claims the idea was dropped because so few women took advantage of the special price.

If he's right, I guess that just goes to prove that there's a boom on. I never before heard of people turning up their noses at cut rates. Bill.

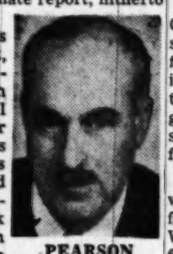
Oil Firms Face Price-Boost Quiz

By Drew Pearson

What is described as highway robbery in the price of gasoline has just been made the subject of a sizzling Senate report, hitherto unpublished.



PEARSON

On the basis of this report, Senator Maybank of South Carolina will call the major oil companies before his Banking and Currency Committee and ask them to explain unreasonable price boosts.

What Senate investigators found was that the average motorist must pay an extra $40 a year for the same amount of gasoline that he purchased in 1946. Yet the oil companies justify higher prices on the grounds that they are losing profits.

Regarding this, Senate investigators state in their so-far-confidential report:

Zooming Profits

"The oil company profits for 1948 were so high as to exert a disproportionate influence on the general level of profits.

"Thus the Standard & Poor's Corp. reported that for 1548 industrial companies, profits for 1948 were 23.2 per cent above 1947. However, if oil companies were eliminated from the sample, 1948 profits were only 16 per cent above 1947. In other words, so great was the oil industry's increase in 1948 profits that for a large sample of all industrial corporations, the 1948 profits increase was about 50 per cent greater as a result of including the oil companies."

From 1946 to 1948, oil profits shot up more than 2½ times, the investigators report. The oil companies justified this on the grounds that they were expanding to meet the unprecedented demand for petroleum products. Now the expansion has stopped, as evidenced by cutbacks in production and imports. Yet the oil companies turn around and boost prices even higher because these inflated profits are settling back to earth again.

Senator Maybank will call the big oil companies before his committee around June 15.

Capital News

PARIS CONFERENCE — Secretary of State Dean Acheson says this week is the critical period in the Big Four Foreign Ministers' conference. Both sides have been sparring up until now and no secret sessions have taken place to date. However, this week several secret sessions will take place and Acheson thinks they'll give an opportunity to find out whether the Russians want to fish or cut bait. If there is no action next week, Acheson will be home around June 10.

TALKS WITH VISHINSKY—Secretary Acheson has held two off-the-record meetings with Vishinsky—one short and one long—to talk over the Austrian peace treaty. And for the first time since 1947 Acheson believes an agreement can be reached to get Russian troops out of Austria. Vishinsky has shown a surprisingly mild attitude in these talks, and Acheson has indicated the United States may consent to let the Russians have 150 million dollars in Austrian reparations in return for an Austrian peace treaty.

Mail Bag

Robert McKinney, owner and publisher of the Santa Fe New Mexican, writes as follows:

"Dear Mr. Pearson:

"The shocking death by suicide of Mr. James Forrestal, late Secretary of Defense, will grieve all who ever knew and served with him. I had the privilege of a tour of duty, in a minor capacity, on Mr. Forrestal's staff, and came to respect him as an American of consummate ability and patriotism.

"His suicide, however, means more than a personal loss to his friends. It must be taken to the Nation's heart as glaring proof of the need for fearless news reporting in the National Capital. When your dispatch came out some weeks ago describing the advanced state of deterioration of Mr. Forrestal's mental health, it came as more of a surprise to me than did the subsequent news that Mr. Forrestal has now taken his life. I happened to be in Washington at the time you broke the story, and heard among his friends and many Government officials the almost unanimous opinion that the Forrestal story was the last straw—that Drew Pearson should now be shut up for irresponsible reporting.

"Had the officials of the Naval Medical Center been as alert and diligent about their business as you were about yours, perhaps Mr. Forrestal might have eventually recovered and lived a long and useful life. American newspapermen should paste on their walls the headlines of this minor Pearl Harbor at Bethesda, to guide them whenever there is pressure to withhold the news."

Sabotaging Housing

Inside fact is that courteous Chairman Sabath could have squelched the Rules Committee filibuster against the public housing bill and railroaded the bill to the House floor—if the benign gentleman from Illinois used the same strong-arm tactics that his foes use against him.

At one closed-door session last week, only one of the committee's four Republicans—New York's Jim Wadsworth—showed up. This put filibustering Gene Cox of Georgia, the Dixiecrat, in a frenzy, because Sabath had the votes to vote the housing bill out over his head with three Republicans absent.

Cox, who almost always votes with the Republicans, immediately began demanding that the committee postpone action until "all the members are here to express themselves." Sabath, however, stopped him.

"I could take advantage of these gentlemen who are absent and call for a vote, but I don't intend do. I don't believe in doing business that way. I try to be considerate of my colleagues who are against me as well as those who are with me.

"However, I expect the same treatment myself in the future," he added, looking squarely at the gentleman from Georgia.
